Leo M. Frank Again Loses In U. S. Supreme Court

ENGLAND LOSES ANOTHER MAMMOTH BATTLESHIP

HOLMES EXPRESSES DOUBT THAT HE WAS GIVEN A FAIR TRIAL

Second Justice of Supreme Court of United States Refuses to Issue Writ of Error in Noted Case

SPARK OF HOPE IS SEEN BY PRISONER'S ATTORNEY

Justice Holmes' Doubt of Fair Trial May Swerve Tide of Opinion Which May Result in Executive Clemency

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—A ray of hope has appeared for Leo M. Frank, in death cell in Atlanta, today, for a writ of error, Justice Holmes, of the supreme court, said that on the statement of facts before him he was of the opinion that the prisoner had not had a fair trial because there had apparently been a denial of due process of law.

He referred to the suggestion by the trial judge of the presence of a hostile crowd in the court room, which threatened violence in case a verdict of guilty came in. But Justice Holmes insisted that the question was one which all had considered by the supreme court of Georgia. If that tribunal said there had been due process, then no one seems to see any need for the United States supreme court to do.

The only issue before Justice Holmes, he said, was whether the prisoner was denied his constitutional rights by being forced to leave the court room while the verdict was being read, and Justice Holmes held, as did Justice Lamar, that there was not an error.

While the admission of Justice Holmes that there had been a denial of due process of law, it is thought by his attorney, will swerve the tide of opinion in his favor, and may lead to clemency from the governor and the board of pardons if efforts for a writ of error fail.

Application for a writ of error will be made to the full bench of the supreme court today.

JUSTICE HOLMES' OPINION.

Attorney Harry Alexander said today: "Frank is an innocent man. I make no statement on my personal and professional responsibility."

The following is the text of the opinion of Justice Holmes rendered yesterday denying the writ of error which was not made public until today:

Opinion of Mr. Justice Holmes:

Frank vs. State of Georgia, application for a writ of error.

I understand that I am to assume for the purposes of this motion that the allegations of fact in the motion to set aside are true. On those I do not seriously doubt if the petitioner has had due process of law. But on the ground of his absence when the verdict was rendered so much as a witness of the trial taking place in the presence of the jury, the intimidation of a roughly dangerous crowd, thought by the presiding judge to be ready for violence if a verdict of guilty was rendered, I should not feel prepared to grant a writ of error if I did not consider that I was bound by the decision of the supreme court of Georgia that the motion to set aside came too late, and even if I thought that the question of waiver was not enough to meet the constitutional question and the right to bring it here.

I understand from the headnote and from opinion that the case was finished when the previous motion for a new trial was denied on the ground that all such cases must be ended at some time, that apart from any question of fairness, the second motion came too late.

I think I am bound by this decision, even if it reverses a long line of cases, and the counsel for the petitioner were misled to his detriment

Double Killing in Florida Is Heavily Veiled in Mystery

Police Find No Clew to Slayers of Atlantian's Brother and Niece

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 26.—Authorities investigating the mystery surrounding the double murder of Adam A. Boggs, a prominent Florida attorney, and his eighteen-year-old daughter, Marjorie, brother and niece of G. H. Boggs, of Atlanta, whose charred bodies were found early yesterday in the ruins of their country home near here, today had discovered no new facts or clews tending to establish the identity of the slayers.

The police today reaffirmed their belief that robbery was the motive for the murder and that the axe found under shrubbery near the Boggs home was the weapon used. The further theory that the house was burned in an effort to hide the crime still is entertained by officers at work on the case.

The search for the slayers became statewide today, every police department and sheriff's office in Florida having been asked to aid the Miami authorities in their quest.

Funds to assist in the employment of detectives to work on the case were pledged here at a mass meeting of citizens. Appeals also were directed to the governor, county commissioners and town authorities to offer large rewards for the apprehension of the murderers.

The coroner's jury heard testimony of a number of neighbors who found the bodies of Mr. Boggs and his daughter in the ruins of their home and adjourned until Friday without returning a verdict. Stains found on the axe discovered in the shrubbery will be analyzed.

Fred W. Carson, a young attorney of Miami, who was one of Mr. Boggs' law partners, escorted Miss Marjorie home from a dance in the neighborhood the night of the tragedy. He stated that he and Miss Boggs reached her home about 12:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. Mr. Cason said he left Miss Boggs at the front door of her home. Mr. Cason is chairman of the citizen's committee that has pledged funds to prosecute the search for the slayers.

The authorities believe the crime was committed after 1 o'clock Wednesday morning, as the flames were pouring from the windows of the upper floors of the Boggs residence and from the roof when neighbors discovered the fire shortly before 3 a. m.

Lucian H. Boggs, a Jacksonville attorney, brother of the murdered man, arrived here today to assist in the search for the slayers. Mrs. Boggs, widow of the murdered lawyer, is expected here Saturday from Lake Placid, N. Y., where she had been visiting her son, who is in school there.

MOTORCYCLIST IS KILLED IN RACES AT SAVANNAH

Gray Sloop Is Dead and John de Montmollin Injured

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 26.—In full view of a thousand or more people who lined the last turn of the race course leading into the home stretch of the 200-mile motorcycle race this morning, Gray Sloop, of Greenville, S. C., an entrant, lost control of his rapidly moving machine and was dashed to death against a tree beside the track. The accident occurred on the third lap of the race when Sloop was well up among the leaders. The track just before the home stretch is reached was newly made and sandy and it is thought Sloop let his machine get away from him.

The spectators who were watching him come down the track at a terrific rate of speed were horrified to find that instead of coming directly on he ran over the small embankment that designated the turn and crashed headlong into a tree. When he was picked up he was dead. Both his neck and back were broken. The machine was wrecked.

Early in the morning in the city there was a collision between John De Montmollin, of Macon, and Martin Schroder, of Savannah, both entered in the day's event. Schroder was uninjured, but the Macon man suffered a broken rib and other slight injuries.

Another accident is reported at Sandfly Station several miles out on the course. The name of the injured rider is not given.

The race attracted a great deal of attention in Savannah. All along the course there were sightseeing parties and at the principal turn, where the fatal accident occurred, there was an immense crowd of spectators. There were something like thirty starters for the event.

BOY ON BICYCLE RUN DOWN BY MOTOR TRUCK

Driver of Truck Disappears After Accident, Says Police Officer

Joseph McMillan, sixteen years old, of 112 Simpson street, was run over by an automobile truck Thursday morning and painfully injured. The accident occurred at the corner of Peachtree and North avenue.

Young McMillan was riding a bicycle. He was heading into Peachtree street from North avenue. The automobile truck, driven by K. J. Watkins, a white man, was turning from Peachtree into North avenue. A street car obstructed the view of the boy and the truck driver and a collision resulted.

The boy was thrown from his wheel underneath the truck. An unknown man who was passing in his automobile at the time, picked up the injured youth and hurried him to the Davis-Fischer sanitarium, where it was found that his injuries consisted of a number of painful bruises.

According to Mounted Officer O. R. Jones, who investigated the accident, the driver of the truck left his machine and disappeared and efforts to locate him have so far been unsuccessful.

VERDICT OF SUIDE FOUND BY JURY IN GARDIE HYDEN CASE

Young Man Found Dead on Capitol Avenue Near Fair Last Midnight With Bullet Wound Above Right Ear

MAN'S RELATIVES DOUBTED THEORY OF SUICIDE

Pistol Found Under Body and Cartridges in Pocket Were Not Owned by Him, His Kinsfolk Declare

Testimony at the inquest over the body of Gardie Hyden, 21 years of age, of 328 Crew street, found on Capitol avenue, near Fair street shortly after midnight Thursday, tended to dissipate the theory of relatives that the youth was waylaid and shot to death by highwaymen. The jury returned a verdict of suicide.

Two companions of the early hours in the evening testified that Hyden was carrying a revolver, and they identified the weapon found under his body. The revolver had one empty chamber and a bullet hole had been drilled through his right temple.

Another friend of the dead boy testified that last Saturday Hyden was "down in the mouth about a girl" and that he then threatened suicide.

Young Hyden, who for the past three years has been employed at the Red Seal Shoe factory and who lived with his mother, four brothers and two sisters, was seen about midnight at the corner of Fraser and East Fair streets by Bicycle Officers McKinney and Shumate. He talked with them a moment and indicated that he intended paying some friend a visit. They advised him that it was late and that he had better go home. He said he would. The officers say Hyden appeared to be drinking.

Five or ten minutes later the officers heard a pistol shot in the vicinity of Capitol avenue and Fair street, and mounting their bicycles they hurried there.

M. Felton, who lives at 278 South Pryor street, was on Capitol avenue a few doors from Fair street, when he heard the report of the pistol. He rushed back and discovered the body of the young man just as the officers came up. Hyden was lying on the sidewalk. He had a bullet hole in his head just over the right ear. Beneath his body was found a 32-calibre pistol with one empty chamber and in his pocket were a number of 32-calibre cartridges.

The place where the body was found was almost directly in the glare of a big street lamp and both Pelton and the officers are of the opinion that if Hyden had been murdered his murderers would have been seen escaping.

M. H. and G. C. Hyden, brothers of the dead man, and Dr. T. and J. M. Hyden, his uncles, were at the undertaking establishment Thursday morning and after an examination of the body they declared there was no doubt Gardie Hyden had been murdered.

The brothers said the young man, who was six feet tall and weighed 175 pounds, never owned a pistol. They are of the opinion that the pistol found under his body was left by the highwaymen and that the cartridges found in his pocket were placed there by them.

M. H. Hyden, one of the brothers, says that on Wednesday morning Gardie borrowed $5 from him; that this was all the money he had and that when his body was found there was $3.20 in his pockets. He could not, the brothers say, have purchased a pistol for the $1.80 which was missing.

The condition of the dead man's clothing and the several wounds about the face and head, they say, make it clear that he did not commit suicide. One coat sleeve, trousers were badly rumpled and soiled, especially about the knees, and his shirt was torn in two places, indicating, according to the relatives, that he engaged in a severe struggle before he was killed.

The brothers and other relatives who have examined the body are of the opinion that young Hyden was first struck and knocked to his knees with the butt of the pistol or some other heavy instrument and that the struggle occurred while he was on his knees. This, they say, is indicated by the condition of the trouser knees and the fact that the bullet which killed him ranged downward, entering the head just above the right ear.

According to the relatives there was no motive for the young man to commit suicide and even had there been he would not have chosen the street for the act. They say he was in excellent spirits Wednesday; that he had a good position and was not worried by any domestic or love affairs. He had arranged, they say, to spend Thanksgiving day in DeKalb county with an aunt and was to go there Thursday morning with his sister, Jennie.

In the dead man's pockets was found an affectionate letter signed "Your sweetheart, Bessie, Cumming, Ga., Route 5, Box 72." There was nothing in this letter to depress young Hyden. The writer reminded him that he had not written to her and said she thought he would be glad to hear from an old sweetheart. In the same pocket was a dance program across which was written: "Presented to Gardie Hyden at Grant Park by his sweetheart, Mary."

Surviving the dead man are his mother, two sisters, Miss Jennie Hyden and Mrs. Henry Thackston; four brothers, M. H., G. C., Daniel and Estell Hyden, and two uncles, D. T. and J. M. Hyden.

LET US BE THANKFUL

GEN. CARRANZA PLANS TO STARVE OUT HIS ENEMIES

Declares Plan of Zapata and Villa to Join Forces Pleases Him

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 26.—The occupation of Mexico City by the forces of General Zapata and the apparent understanding that has been reached between this southern leader and General Villa appear to be pleasing rather than otherwise to General Carranza's supporters here, who, it is supposed, reflect Carranza's opinion in this respect.

In general the plan now will be to besiege Zapata and Villa, cutting every railroad and starving the forces to surrender, if possible, but forcing their capitulation at that point in any way which may become necessary.

Ysidro Fabela, Carranza's minister of foreign affairs, who has located his office here, expressed the conviction last night that the task of subduing Zapata and Villa would not be nearly so difficult as appeared. He admitted that the consequences for Mexico City would be bad. He also admitted that already there had been received news that followers of Zapata had sacked certain parts of the capital, though there were no reports to indicate the extent to which this had been carried out, but he regarded this as one of the necessary consequences incident to warfare.

Just who is in control of Mexico City is not known here by the Carranza officials, according to Senor Fabela. It is reported that neither General Zapata nor General Villa actually is in the city, but that they have sent forward one on whom they have agreed as their representative. Nor is it known just where General Villa is, but it is thought that perhaps he has headquarters at Queretaro, although he may be further south. Generals Obregon and Blanco are occupying strategic positions east of Mexico City.

It is no secret that General Villa controls the railway line southward from Juarez clear to Mexico City, said Senor Fabela, and that General Zapata holds that small district in the state of Morelos immediately south of Mexico City. The foreign minister, however, called attention to the positions of General Carranza's men in almost all the other parts of the republic and to their superiority in numbers.

Beginning east of General Villa's territory the Carranza supporters claim the states of Nuevo Leon and Tamaulipas and down the gulf coast of the state of Vera Cruz. General Carranza's power, continued Senor Fabela, extends down the coast, across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec and northwards from the isthmus through the states of Jalisco and Michoacan. General Diegues, a Carranza general in Jalisco, has reported that he successfully withstood a heavy attack by General Felipe Angeles. In the states of Puebla and Tlaxcala.

Three Years Of War Says M. Millerand

LONDON, England, Nov. 26.—Here are the views of Minister of War Millerand, of the French cabinet, on the duration of the war.

His estimate is based on the belief that the Germans will commit no great tactical error.

He divides the war into six periods—two past, one present, and three to come.

The first period was the advance through Belgium into France.

The second period was the Battle of the Marne and the German retreat to the Aisne.

The third period is that of the fighting on the Aisne, continuing and developing into the battle for Calais.

The fourth period will be a German retreat and a battle on the Meuse.

The fifth period will be a further retreat and a battle on the Rhine.

The sixth period will be the march to Berlin.

He estimates that the battle for Calais will end about the beginning of December.

He assigns a period of five months to the Battle of the Meuse—the end of April or the beginning of May, 1915.

The campaign on the Rhine should last nearly twice as long—that is to say, until February, 1916.

The final march to Berlin and negotiations for peace should bring the war to an end with the final withdrawal of the allied armies of occupation in 1917.

This estimate gives a total period of rather less than three years to the war. It is presumed by M. Millerant that the Russian advance will occupy a similar period, and that only the steady combined pressure of the allies can bring matters to a conclusion within the period suggested. He assumes that the German forces will withdraw steadily, and that there will be no sudden collapse of either front.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 26.—First Period: Brown 7; Carlisle 0. Final score: Brown 20; Carlisle 14.

THANKSGIVING DAY CHEER MAKES ATLANTA HAPPY

Service in Church Followed by Bountiful Dinners for the Unfortunate

Atlanta today celebrates Thanksgiving day in the churches, the theaters, the football grandstands, on the golf courses and around the family-circled firesides.

In the Home for the Friendless, the Home for Incurables, the Home for Old Women, the Old Soldiers' home, and in the various other similar institutions of the city, bountiful dinners have been provided.

The men in the convict camps of Fulton county will have something better than the simple though strengthening rations which they eat on ordinary days, and the men in the federal prison will enjoy the feast which their host, Uncle Sam, always spreads on Thanksgiving day.

In the rank and file of Atlanta homes the turkey is in the roasting oven, the cranberries are in the saucepan, and hearts glow with the happiness of loved ones gathered at the festal board.

CHURCH SERVICES.

Atlanta churches held the usual services of the occasion Thursday morning. The Presbyterians united at First Presbyterian church, where Dr. J. S. Lyons preached. The Methodists united at Wesley Memorial church, where Dr. W. R. Hendrix preached. The Baptists united at Second Baptist church, where Dr. R. D. Hahn, a distinguished minister of Greenville, S. C., preached. Services were held at All Saints' and at St. Luke's Episcopal churches. Other churches throughout the city observed Thanksgiving with appropriate sermons and music.

Moving picture shows opened bright and early for a full day's run with many special Thanksgiving features. The Atlanta theater has a special Thanksgiving matinee of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine." The Forsyth ticket sale forecasts big houses for matinee and night performances of the week's excellent vaudeville bill.

Clubs will abound in Thanksgiving cheer and resound to the music of the dance. Thanksgiving parties and balls will be held in many homes in honor of sons and daughters home for Turkey day.

FOOTBALL GAME.

Tech and Clemson play on Grant field the football game without which Thanksgiving is incomplete, while the devotees of golf are enjoying fine weather and dry courses to the utmost.

The feast is spread. The day is fair. The land is prosperous. The nation is at peace.

Let us all give thanks to the God in whom we trust.

BULWARK IS BLOWN UP; 788 MEN LOST

Allies Recapture Dixmude From Germans and Russians Administer Severe Defeat to Kaiser's Forces in Poland

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Nov. 26.—It was officially announced here today that the British battleship Bulwark had been blown up off Sheerness. Only twelve men out of the 800 on board the Bulwark were saved.

According to the admiralty the explosion which resulted in the destruction of the Bulwark is believed to have originated in her own magazine.

The announcement of the disaster to the Bulwark was made by Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The explosion which destroyed the Bulwark occurred at 7:53 a. m. A vice admiral and a rear admiral who were at Sheerness reported that they were convinced that the disaster was caused by a magazine explosion. There was no upheaval of the water. When the smoke had cleared away the ship had entirely disappeared.

An inquiry will be held tomorrow, and the admiralty believes that it may throw some light on the occurrence.

Mr. Churchill, speaking in the house of commons concerning the disaster said:

"The loss of the ship does not sensibly affect our military position, but I regret the loss of life, which was very heavy. Only 12 men were saved. All the officers and the rest of the crew which I suppose amounted to between 700 and 800 perished."

The British battleship Bulwark, 15,000 tons displacement, was laid down in 1899 and completed in 1902. She was 411 feet long, 75 feet wide and drew 29 feet of water. Her armament consisted of four 12-inch, twelve 6-inch guns, sixteen 12-pounders, six 3-pounders and four submerged torpedo tubes. She had a complement of 750 men.

Sheerness is on the Thames, at the mouth of the estuary of the Medway. It is 55 miles down the river from London.

Allies Recapture Dixmude, Russians Rout Germans

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail at Dunkirk, France, telegraphs that Dixmude has been retaken by the allies. He says:

"The French marines attacked the town strongly on Tuesday night and drove the Germans out of three lines of advanced trenches. On Wednesday they pushed on up by entering the town in an irresistible charge.

"The enemy did not halt in their retreat until they were seven miles out of the town. The marines lost 300 men."

Official advices received in Russian circles in London today declare that the rout of the German and Austrian forces in Poland has been complete. The general staff, however, is not yet able to give any details of the fighting.

"It is now clear that the Russian victory in Poland is decisive," says the Petrograd correspondent of the Express. The number of prisoners taken by the Russians is estimated at 50,000 or 60,000. The Germans have begun a retreat along the entire front. The correspondent continues, "and in many places the flight is a disordered rout, marked by the abandonment of artillery, maxims and transports.

"Berlin meanwhile is beginning to talk about repulsing Russian attacks which is a subtle method of announcing that the German troops are on the defensive."

The correspondent of the Times at Sofia, Bulgaria, reports that Russian troops have arrived in Servia, to assist the Servians in fighting the Austrians.

"Fifteen regiments of Russian troops with seventy barge loads of ammunition and supplies have arrived at the Servian town of Radovitatz," the Times' correspondent says. "They made the 500 mile trip up the Danube from Russian territory. They will be rushed to the front to assist the Servians."

Persians Massacre 2,000 Russians, Says This Report

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Telegraphing from Amsterdam the correspondent of Reuter's Telegram company says the Berlin Tageblatt has published a dispatch from Constantinople to the effect that 2,000 Russians have been massacred at Tabriz by Persians.

The British official press bureau, while assenting to the publication of the above dispatches says it appears to

HOG AND HOMINY BALL COMMITTEES ARE NAMED

Prominent Atlanta Society Women Will Help Make Affair Success

Mrs. William Lawson Peel, who has consented to act as chaperon at the carnival ball on the evening of December 3, at the auditorium, announced Thursday a list of society women who have consented to be patronesses at the ball, which is expected to be the most spectacular public affair of this sort ever held in Atlanta.

The list is as follows: Mrs. Frank Inman, Mrs. J. R. Gray, Mrs. Clark Howell, Mrs. John E. Murphy, Mrs. Frank S. Ellis, Mrs. Ernest Woodruff, Mrs. William H. Kiser, Mrs. Walter Rich, Mrs. H. L. DeGive, Mrs. John W. Grant, Mrs. Benjamin Elsas, Mrs. William L. Moore and Mrs. Walter P. Andrews.

Mrs. Peel is arranging to have the queen and her court bedecked in royal regalia. She is anxious that the reception excel, in spectacular beauty, any previous event of this sort. Crowning of the queen and her court will be the big feature. This will be followed by an exhibition of court and modern dances. Then will come the grand march in which every person at the ball will be invited to participate.

A number of society women have already arranged to occupy boxes at the ball next Thursday evening, and, altogether, it promises to be an event never before equalled in Atlanta.

COMMITTEES NAMED.

These committees of widely known Atlanta business men and social leaders have been named:

Reception—Jack Lewis, chairman; R. S. Wessell, T. H. Daniel, Walter Andrews, Beaumont Davison, Fred Paxon, Lee Jordan, Le Roy Duncan, Henry Grady, Fred Patterson, Robert Maddox, Thomas Paine, Brooks Morgan, V. H. Kriegshaber, H. G. Hastings, J. T. Hollomon, Ben Lee Crew, St. Elmo Massengale, R. L. Foreman, Lucien York, Ivan E. Allen, H. A. Manier, Colonel W. L. Peel, W. C. Wardlaw, Kendall Weisiger, W. J. Davis, W. B. Carlton, Julius DeGive.

Floor—Jack Lewis, chairman; A. S. Adams, Turner Carson, J. Lee Barnes, Vardeman Gude, John J. Woodside, Jr., H. W. Anderson, Forrest Adair, George B. Allen, W. S. Byck, Frank Calloway, Haynes Calloway, Haynes McFadden, George Fauss, Milton Saul, Fred Houser, Basil Stockbridge, Henry Watkins, Paul Norcross, Wiley West, Boyd Perry, S. A. Kiser, Wilmer Moore, E. M. Horine, Jack Letton, E. A. W. Austin, Graham Phelan, Dr. J. G. Williams, Arthur Giles and Shepard Bryan.

Tickets to the carnival ball which will be the big evening event of the Hog and Hominy carnival, under the auspices of the Atlanta Ad Men's club, may be had at $1 each from almost any retail merchant; at the hotels or at the chamber of commerce. The ticket, admitting a gentleman and lady, will be accompanied by a vote for the queen and a souvenir gold button of the carnival. The voting is under way at Cone's Whitehall street drug store and the race for first honors are twelve of the most popular debutantes in Atlanta.

PARADE PLANS.

The parade plans for the afternoon have been finished and there will be in line several thousand marchers in addition to a number of spectacular floats and decorated autos. The march will start at the state capitol at 2:30 o'clock and will move north in Whitehall and Peachtree streets, to Baker, thence to Ivy street and disperse.

DINNER AND DANCE AT DECATUR ATHLETIC CLUB

Thanksgiving will be celebrated Thursday evening at the Decatur Athletic club with a picnic dinner and dance. The dinner will be spread in the club rooms and cider made from Georgia apples will be on tap.

Those members of the club and their friends who do not care to dance will play bridge. A series of entertainments are being planned by the entertainment committee of the club, composed of the following gentlemen: Robert C. W. Hainspeck, chairman; Clayton Scofield, Guy Shearer, Atticus Haygood, Then Romspeck and Hugh H. Trotti.

THANKSGIVING EDITION OF ATLANTIAN IS OUT

Bright and snappy as usual, the Thanksgiving edition of the Atlantian, L. Walter Tripp's well known magazine, went on the newsstands Thursday morning.

On the front cover is a fine likeness of Hon. A. O. Blalock, United States collector of internal revenue for Georgia.

The editorial column carries a Thanksgiving editorial and comments on local politics, the recent state elections, national affairs and the European war.

NEGRO THIEF IN HOUSE FLEES WHEN DISCOVERED

When C. F. Lemon, of 145 Lee street, stepped from his library about midnight Wednesday en route to his bedroom, he came face to face in the hall with a negro burglar.

According to his report to Call Officers Long and Austin he started back for a gun, while the burglar headed for the front door, the street and safety. When he secured his weapon and ran to the porch, Mr. Lemon says, the burglar had disappeared in the dark.

Nothing of value was missing from the residence.

Bankruptcy Petition

An involuntary bankruptcy petition was filed in the federal court Wednesday by the Rome Plate Glass company and other creditors against the Fowler Hardware company of Bowden, Carroll county, a partnership consisting of J. A. and G. E. Fowler. A petition was also filed for a receiver.

Hard-Hearted Chicken Thief Steals Woman's Pet Fowls for Dinner

Preparations of certain denizens of Darktown for a Thanksgiving day of real feasting resulted Wednesday night in raids on many chicken coops.

One of the raids was a real tragedy, not only for the fowls, which were never intended to grace a dinner table, but for the mistress, whose pets they were, as well.

Mrs. Julia Lee, of 11 Johnson avenue, reports to the police, that fourteen chickens, twelve of them special pets which she dressed in flannels on cold days, were stolen Wednesday evening from their coop, which is equipped with special heating arrangement so the chicks would suffer no inconvenience by a drop in the mercury.

Mrs. Lee, according to the police, is heartbroken.

"I wouldn't take any amount of money for my chicks," she told the officers, "for I love them like children. I have always fed them myself, giving them everything to eat that a fowl or a human could want. I intended to keep them always. They were not destined for the pot.

"Had the chickens fluttered or called in any way I would have heard them and stopped the thief, so I suppose that their fate can be attributed to their own gentleness. They were accustomed to being petted, and would never try to get away when some one wanted to pick them up. Probably they went to that mean thief to be killed just as they would have flown to my arms to be petted and fed."

Other losses of chickens on the eve of Thanksgiving are reported by Mrs. S. B. Burton, 301 West North avenue, and D. L. Thomas, 284 Capitol avenue.

LATEST MODEL CADILLAC IS SHOWN IN ATLANTA

First of New Eight-Cylinder Cars Is Viewed by Hundreds of Atlantians

The first of the new eight-cylinder Cadillac cars to be shown in the south arrived in Atlanta Wednesday and is being shown on Thanksgiving day at the Cadillac headquarters, 228 Peachtree street.

Hundreds of people gathered around to give it the "once over" and it is stated that as a result of this first inspection a number of orders have already been booked.

Lindsey Hopkins, president of the Atlanta Cadillac company, took the new car out for a little run and on his return said he was confirmed in his opinion that the new Cadillac 8 is the smoothest running car in the history of automobiling. He and his associates are enthusiastic over the smooth, velvety flow of power that is the main feature of the car.

The new cadillac has a streaming body and is 600 pounds lighter than the old car. Nothwithstanding its eight cylinders, the hood is no longer than the old hood. It has every known modern contrivance, including power tire pump, and all the controls are on the dash within easy reach of the driver. The driver may enter the car from either side. It is a seven-passenger car, though the two extra seats may be turned back, giving it the appearance of a five-passenger car. It may be seen any day from now on at the Cadillac headquarters.

FATHER OF NINE CHILDREN IS ALLEGED BIGAMIST

South Carolina Woman Charges Atlanta Man With Having Two Wives

Accused of having a living wife and a large family of children in Atlanta, of leaving them here and going to Spartanburg, S. C., of preaching among the mill hands there, and finally of marrying a Spartanburg girl and deserting her in a few weeks to return to Atlanta, Henry Brumblow, aged fifty-five years, a distinguished looking man with iron gray hair and a heavy gray mustache, was arrested Thursday morning at the Atlanta Woolen mills by Call Officer Watson on a warrant charging bigamy sworn out in Greenville, S. C., by a woman signing herself Mrs. N. J. Brumblow and claiming to be his wife.

Some days ago Chief Beavers, Chief Welch and the chief out Phinclothes Officer McKibben on Brumblow's trail, with the result that he was located in the woolen mill. The chief then telegraphed the woman that he must have a warrant to arrest Brumblow, and accordingly she swore it out and posted it to the chief by the next mail. It arrived Thursday morning and Brumblow was arrested an hour later. Deputy Sheriff W. B. Keller, of Greenville, will come after Brumblow to take him to that city, where it is alleged that Brumblow moved with his new wife immediately after their marriage.

Brumblow at police station acknowledged nine children, but refused to discuss the bigamy charge.

"Let the police find out whether I'm a bigamist," was his only comment.

THE WHOLE BODY NEEDS PURE BLOOD

The bones, the muscles, and all the organs of the body depend for their strength and tone and healthy action on pure blood.

If the blood is very impure, the bones become diseased; the muscles become enfeebled, the step loses its elasticity, and there is inability to perform the usual amount of labor. The skin loses its clearness, and pimples, blotches and other eruptions appear.

Hood's Sarsaparilla makes pure blood. It is positively unequaled in the treatment of scrofula and other humors, catarrh, rheumatism, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, that tired feeling. Be sure to get Hood's and get it today. All druggists.—(Advt.)

RANCHMAN HINTS NELMS SISTERS MAY BE ALIVE

Story of Stranger, While Not Taken Seriously, Being Investigated

Members of the Nelms family are investigating a mysterious Texas ranchman, who recently approached Marshall Nelms in San Antonio, asking if he would pay $10,000 if the stranger produced his two sisters, "dead or alive."

Young Nelms was impressed by the mysterious ranchman and wired his mother, Mrs. John W. Nelms, about the question. Mrs. Nelms Wednesday afternoon instructed him to offer the man $10,000 to produce the two girls.

F. M. Lovelass, Mrs. Nelms' confidential business adviser, is fully informed of the new turn in the case, and he is not impressed with the proposition.

"It looks very much like a kind of flim-flam game to me," said Mr. Lovelass, "and for that reason I advised Mrs. Nelms not to increase her reward for the dead bodies of the missing girls."

The query from the Texas ranchman is the first intimation in several months that Beatrice Nelms and Elois Nelms Liemlin are still alive.

"I lay no stress by the proposal of these mysterious parties in San Antonio," said Mrs. Nelms Thursday morning. "I am satisfied that my precious children are dead and that I will never see them again. They have been murdered, I am certain."

Mrs. Nelms said she had agreed to increase the reward for information which will conclusively show that her daughters are dead or alive. She has, she says, increased the outstanding reward to $10,000. "If they are dead, as I believe them to be," she said, "the person claiming the reward must produce and positively identify their bodies, and if they are alive they must also be produced.

"I do not believe a reward of $100,000 would aid any in clearing up the mystery surrounding their disappearance. The parties who approached my son were, in my opinion, seeking to get some easy money. They asked that he sign an agreement to pay them $10,000 if they produced the bodies of my daughters, dead or alive.

"We declined to sign any such an agreement as they might have produced some unrecognizable bodies and claimed the money. We did offer, however, to pay a reward of $10,000 to any person or persons who produced the girls or their bodies. Nothing further has been heard of the San Antonio parties."

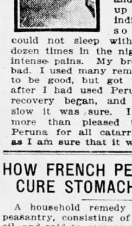
A Bad Stomach



Mrs. Emma Rooke, 1612 W. Erie St., Chicago, Ill., a professional nurse, writes: "Peruna was a wonderful benefit to me. I suffered with catarrh of the stomach in a very bad form, could not eat without great distress. My stomach became sour, I had gas, and would belch up my food. My indigestion was so bad that I could not sleep without waking a dozen times in the night, often with intense pains. My breath was very bad. I used many remedies supposed to be good, but got no relief until after I had used Peruna. Then my recovery began, and while it was slow it was sure. I am therefore more than pleased to recommend Peruna for all catarrhal difficulties, as I am sure that it will cure them."

HOW FRENCH PEOPLE CURE STOMACH TROUBLE

A household remedy of the French peasantry, consisting of pure vegetable oil, said to possess wonderful merit in the treatment of stomach, liver and intestinal troubles, has been introduced in this country by George H. Mayr, who for twenty years has been one of the leading downtown druggists of Chicago and who himself was cured by its use. So quick and effective is its action that a single dose is usually enough to bring pronounced relief in the most stubborn cases, and many people who have tried it declare they never heard of anything to produce such remarkable results in so short a time. It is known as Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy and can now be had at almost any drug store. It is now sold by here by Jacobs' Pharmacy.—(Advt.)

Colored Promoter of Free Excursion Stages Fight With His Guests

Chattering like a Congo monkey, York Stroud, black as coal and comical looking, appeared before Recorder George E. Johnson Tuesday afternoon, charged with leading a hundred negroes as far as the Terminal station for an excursion to Tampa, Fla., and then being mobbed by the enraged blacks after their excursion hopes were blasted.

"Looks to me as if you ought to arrest the men who mobbed the prisoner; this man didn't do anything; it was all done to him," said Judge Johnson to Plain Clothes Officer Cason.

"This nigger was fighting all of them hard as he could, and didn't want to quit when I dived in and got him," Cason explained. "I asked him, 'Nigger, can't you run?' He said, 'Yas suh.' 'Well, run then,' I told him. But he started at the crowd again."

Stroud, who stutters like a broken buzz-saw, explained to the court that he had passes for a hundred to Tampa, but the ticket man would not recognize them. So the mob which he led to the station turned on him. The case was dismissed.

WAR PICTURES FURTHER MOVEMENT FOR PEACE

Ministers Asked to Announce Exhibition at Grand From Pulpits Sunday

In furtherance of the plan for worldwide peace, every minister in Atlanta has been urged to announce from his pulpit Sunday the exhibition of Belgian war motion pictures which will be shown at the Grand theater beginning Monday. The pictures were taken under an arrangement with the Belgian government by Edwin F. Weigle, staff photographer of the Chicago Tribune. The Red Cross society of Belgium is to get one-half of the proceeds of receipts from the film in this country.

The pictures, because they show war in all of its horrors, have done much to crystalize sentiment in the movement for universal peace. They were taken on Belgian battlefields while the Germans and Belgians were pounding away at each other and they bring home impressively the tragedy of war's folly and its destructiveness. For this reason clergymen everywhere are being urged to commend the pictures to their congregations.

MAN SAYS NEGROES ROB HIM OF WATCH

W. H. K. Southard, 12 North Boulevard, has reported to the police that he was held up and robbed at the point of a pistol by two negroes about 11:30 o'clock Wednesday night. According to the report, Mr. Southard was passing Glaze's alley, when the two negroes stepped from the shadows and demanded his money. They overlooked a small amount of change in a vest pocket, but took a seventeen jewel gold watch.

THANKSGIVING DINNER TO STOCKADE PRISONERS

Sixty prisoners at police station and 210 prisoners at the city stockade will feast today on backbone and spareribs provided for them by T. B. Lanford, the stockade superintendent.

Hogs are raised at the stockade along with other things to feed the prisoners, and Superintendent Lanford saved several of the finest for Thanksgiving day.

He will give the prisoners backbone pie, spareribs a la mode, hog head, corn bread and plenty of strong coffee.

WAR HAS COST BRITISH NAVY NEARLY 8,000 MEN

Officers and Men Killed, 4,327—Missing Number 968, Prisoners, 1,575

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Thus far the war has cost the royal navy 4,327 officers and men killed and 473 wounded, while 986 men are missing and 1,575 are captives or have been interned.

These figures are contained in an admiralty statement just issued and include, in addition to naval men, the marines of the royal naval division. The casualties and the number of men captured or interned are given as:

Officers: Killed 220; wounded 37; prisoners 5; interned 46.

Men: Killed 4,107; wounded 436; missing 968; interned 1,524.

Most of those reported killed were drowned, 1,718 losing their lives thus when the cruisers Pathfinder, Abeukir, Cressy and Hogue were sunk by German submarines, while the foundering of the Monmouth and Good Hope, after battling the German squadron off the Chilean coast was responsible for the drowning of 1,654 officers and men.

Operations of the royal naval division at Antwerp are accountable for nearly all those reported interned or missing. Most of the missing are said by the admiralty statement to be prisoners of war in Germany.

Atlanta Lochinvar Bears Smyrna Bride Away on Motorcycle

The modern young Lochinvar has come out of the west astride his iron horse, and eloped with Miss Annie Neary, nineteen years old, of Smyrna, Ga., seated pillion fashion on the rear of his motorcycle.

The young Lochinvar in this case is John Mack Jennings, one of Atlanta's most daring motorists. For years he had known Miss Neary, meeting her when he was employed as route boy by The Journal. Last week they planned secretly to marry, and hit upon the motorcycle as the swiftest steed in Dan Cupid's stable.

So last Tuesday night Mr. Jennings sped out to Smyrna on his machine, met Miss Neary at her front door, paused a moment while she seated herself behind him, then wheeled the nose of the motorcycle toward the east and cut out the muffler.

The eighteen miles to the city they achieved at top speed. The motorcycle was driven to the home of Rev. G. M. Eakes, 24 East Georgia avenue, where they were married. Half an hour later they were back in Smyrna, and Mr. and Mrs. Neary were welcoming a new son-in-law.

SUNDAY LID POPS OFF AT SAVANNAH'S FAIR

Midway Runs Full Blast and Apparently Gets Away With It

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 26.—Savannah has been given a distinct shock by the promoters of the First Congressional District Fair. It was announced on Saturday afternoon last that the fair grounds would be open Sunday. It was specified, however, that the only thing to be open was the exhibits where the agricultural displays were on view and where the prize livestock could be seen.

In the morning a few people went out and looked listlessly about at these things, but in the afternoon the lid popped off. The whole midway, which occupied about six city blocks, was ablaze from early afternoon until late at night.

It has been a long time since Savannah had such an experience, because, as Mayor Tiedeman has said, while Savannah may be bad in some respects she will not stand for Sunday shows.

But she stood for this one all right. The promoters did not stop to ask anybody to let them run the midway on Sunday—they just went to work and ran it anyway. And of course there has been a howl since. It is not expected however that there will be any prosecutions.

Store and House Burn

DOUGLASVILLE, Ga., Nov. 26.—A large frame store building and a five-room dwelling house, the property of Colonel Joe S. James, situated near the Lola Cotton mills, were destroyed by fire Tuesday morning.

WOMAN ON THE BATTLEFIELD

What she gives to a nation.

Shall we say that women contribute only the bandages, the nursing, cheering and comforting the wounded? No! They contribute the fighters! What sort of help and inspiration can a woman be who is enfeebled and broken down by diseases and weakness peculiar to her sex? Can she hope to be a capable mother or an efficient wife?

The mighty restorative power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription speedily causes all womanly troubles to disappear—compels the organs to properly perform their natural functions, corrects displacements, overcomes irregularities, removes pain and misery at certain times and brings back health and strength to nervous, irritable and exhausted women.

It is a wonderful prescription prepared only from nature's roots and herbs with no alcohol to falsely stimulate and no narcotics to wreck the nerves. It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, dragging-down sensation, worry and sleeplessness surely and without loss of time.

Why should any woman continue to worry, to lead a miserable existence, when certain help is at hand?

What Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for thousands it will do for you. It's not a secret remedy for its ingredients are printed on wrapper. Get it this very day at any medicine dealers in either liquid or tablet form. In the meantime address Doctor Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and simply write "Dear Doctor: Please send me without charge further information," and you will receive the advice of a Physician Specialist absolutely free; 148 page book on women's diseases sent free.—(Advt.)

SOCIETY WOMEN COLLECTED A GOODLY SUM Wednesday for the Thanksgiving dinner which will be given the children of the Home for the Friendless. Attracted by the crowd of kiddies in the windows of Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose company on Whitehall street, passers-by donated a liberal fund to make the young folk happy. Some of the ladies and children are shown in the picture. Left to right, they are, Mrs. George Dexter, Dorothy May Peller, Mrs. J. E. C. Pedder, Miss Martha Edmondson, and Oscar Batchelor.

FRANK LOSES AGAIN; HOLMES REFUSES TO CERTIFY HIS WRIT

which I do not intimate to be my view of the case. It is my impression that there is a case in which the ground that I rely on as showing want of due process of law was rejected by the court with my dissent, but I have not interrupted discussion with counsel to try to find it, if it exists.

"O. W. HOLMES,
"Justice Supreme Court of the United States."

FACTS IN CASE.

The following is the statement of fact made by Frank's attorneys on which Justice Holmes acted:

"Ground of motion referred to in opinion of Mr. Justice Holmes, the facts of which were officially certified to be true by the presiding judge, L. S. Roan.

"7. Because that fair and impartial trial was not accorded defendant which is guaranteed to him by the constitution of the United States as contained in the fourteenth amendment to said constitution, to wit: 'Nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law or deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.'

"In support of this ground movant alleges that the court roo mwhereih this trial was held had a number of windows on the Pryor street side looking out on a public street of Atlanta and furnishing access to any noises that might occur upon the street, that there is an open alleyway running from Pryor street on the side of the courthouse and there are windows looking out from the courtroom into this alley and that crowds collected therein, and any noises in this alley could be heard in the court room, that these crowds were boisterous crowd of several hundred boisterous and that on the last day of the trial after the case had been submitted to the jury a large and people were standing in the street in front of the court house and as the solicitor general came out greeted him with loud and boisterous applause, taking him upon their shoulders and carrying him across the street into a building wherein his office was located.

"That this crowd did not wholly disperse during the interval between the giving of the case to the jury and the time when the jury reached its verdict, but during the whole of such time a large crowd was gathered at the junction of Pryor and Hunter streets, that several times during the trial the crowd in the court room and outside of the court room which was audible both to the court and the jury, would applaud when the state scored a point.

"A large crowd of people standing on the outside cheering, shouting and hurrahing and the crowd within the court room signifying their feeling by applause and other demonstrations, and on the trial and in the presence of the jury the trial judge in open court conferred with the chief of police of Atlanta and the colonel of the Fifth Georgia regiment stationed in Atlanta, which had the natural effect of intimidating the jury and so influencing them as to make impossible a fair and impartial consideration of defendant's case.

"Indeed such demonstrations finally actuated the court in making the request of defendant's counsel, Messrs. Rosser and Arnold, as detailed in paragraph 3 of the motion to have defendant and the counsel themselves absent at the time the verdict was received in open court, because the judge apprehended violence to the defendant and his counsel, and the apprehension of such violence naturally saturated the minds of the jury so as to deprive this defendant of a fair and impartial consideration of his case, which the constitution of the United States in the fourteenth amendment hereinbefore referred to, entitled him to.

"On Saturday, August 22, 1913, previous to the rendering of the verdict on August 25, the entire public press appealed to the trial judge to adjourn court from Saturday to Monday, owing to the great public excitement, and the court adjourned from Saturday, 12 o'clock m., to Monday morning, because he felt it unwise to continue the case that day, owing to the great public excitement, and on Monday morning the public excitement had not subsided and was as intense as it was on Saturday previous, and when it was announced that the jury had reached a verdict the trial judge went to the court room and found it crowded with spectators, and fearing violence in the court room, the trial judge cleared it of spectators and the jury was brought in for the purpose of delivering their verdict.

"When the verdict of guilty was announced a signal was given to the crowd on the outside to that effect. The large crowd of people standing on the outside cheered and shouted as the jury was beginning to be polled and before more than one juror had been polled the noise was so loud and confusion so great that the further polling of the jury had to be stopped so as to restore order, and so great was the noise and cheering and confusion from without that it was difficult for the court to hear the responses of the jurors as they were being polled, though the court was only ten feet distant from the jury.

"All of this occurred during the involuntary absence of this defendant, he being at the time in the custody of law and incarcerated in the Fulton jail, his absence from the court room having been requested by the court on account of fear of violence to said defendant as hereinbefore recited."

LAMAR'S OPINION.

Mr. Alexander today made public the text of Justice Lamar's opinion Monday denying the writ:

"Opinion of Mr. Justice Lamar. Leo M. Frank vs. State of Georgia. Motion to set aside verdict:

"The record discloses that on August 25, 1913, Frank was found guilty of murder by a jury in the superior court of Fulton county, Georgia, he, with the consent of his counsel, being absent from the court room when the verdict was rendered. At the same term he made a motion for a new trial, in which the fact of his absence was mentioned, though it was not made a ground of the motion. A new trial was refused, and the case taken to the supreme court of Georgia, where the judgment was affirmed.

"Thereafter, on April 16, 1914, and at a subsequent term of the superior court, Frank made a motion to set aside the verdict. The order denying the same was affirmed by the state supreme court, and thereupon this application for a writ of error was made.

WHAT GEORGIA COURT HELD.

"In its opinion in this case the supreme court of Georgia, among other things, held:

"First. That under the due process clause of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, Frank was entitled to be present in court at every stage of the trial, including the time when the jury returned their verdict.

"Second. That under the laws of Georgia and the practice of its courts a motion for a new trial is a proper method by which to attack a verdict rendered in the prisoner's absence.

"Three. That when that method of procedure is adopted the defendant must set out in the motion for a new trial all known grounds of objection to the verdict, including the fact that he was absent when it was rendered.

"4 That having elected to make a motion for a new trial and the judgment denying the same having been affirmed by the supreme court the defendant could not thereafter make a motion to set aside the verdict on the ground that he had been absent from the court room when the verdict was rendered.

STATE LAWS.

"The laws of the several states fix the method in which and the time at which to attack verdicts because of anything occurring during the progress of the trial, including disorderly conduct of the crowd in and out of the court room and the fact that the defendant was not present when the verdict was rendered. It is for the states to determine when and in a verdict rendered in the absence of the defendant can be attacked by a motion to set aside the verdict or by motion for a new trial, or both. The laws of the states also determine whether the denial of one of these motions will prevent the defendant from subsequently making the other. The decision of the supreme court of Georgia in this case holds that under the laws of that state where a motion for a new trial was made and denied, the defendant could not thereafter make a motion to set aside the verdict on the ground that he was not present when it was returned by the jury. That ruling involves a matter of state practice and presents no federal question. The writ of error is therefore denied.

"Joseph R. Lamar, associate justice supreme court, of the United States."

APPEALS FOR AID FOR WOUNDED IN EUROPE

Situation Dismal Beyond Words, Writes American Woman From Abroad

(By Associated Press.)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26.—Urgent appeals for aid in caring for the wounded in the European war zone were received in this city yesterday. Mrs. Robert E. Strawbridge, a member of the board of managers of the American women's war relief fund, in a cablegram, asks that all Americans send a special Thanksgiving day donation to the fund, while the board of managers in a letter set forth the urgent need of clothing and money.

"The situation is dismal beyond words," the letter stated. "The last week was a frightful one. We cannot tell you how many friends we have lost. Nothing here can ever be the same again for us. Some regiments have lost all their officers, either killed or wounded. Everybody is busy trying to relieve the distress."

"We appeal to all Americans," said Mrs. Strawbridge's cablegram, "to help the American women's war relief fund with their support and money to enable this hospital to relieve and care for the wounded from the trenches. With the hardships and suffering of winter we must have more money to carry on this good work. There have already been over 600 men in the hospital, 150 of them Belgians. Will not every one help by sending a Thanksgiving day donation? All money should be marked 'For the American war relief fund.'"

Germans Lose Heavily in New Attack Along Aisne

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, Nov. 26.—The official French announcement given out in Paris this afternoon reads as follows:

"No important development marked the day of November 25. In the north the cannonading diminished in intensity, and no infantry attack was directed against our lines, which made slight advances at certain points.

"In the region of Arras there was a continuation of the bombardment on the town and its environs.

"On the Aisne the enemy endeavored to deliver an attack on the village of Missy. This movement resulted in complete failure, with considerable losses to the Germans.

"We have made some progress in the region to the west of Souain.

"In the Argonne, in the Woevre district, in Lorraine, and in the Vosges there is almost complete calm along the entire front.

"There has been a heavy fall of snow, particularly in the higher portions of the Vosges mountains."

Germans and Austrians Claim Partial Victory

VILLAGE SCHOOL HOUSE JOFFRE'S HEADQUARTERS

Machinery at Nerve Center of Allied Armies Moves Swiftly but Silently

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

GENERAL JOFFRE'S HEADQUARTERS, Nov. 7.—The nerve center that moves more than 2,000,000 men of the French army is in a village school house twenty miles behind the firing lines. The rare observer who is permitted to approach finds an absolute contrast between the tranquility here and the tremendous action near the trenches. No cannon, machine gun or rifle can be heard here.

The commander-in-chief works, not only far from the disturbance of actual conflict, but in the depth of the country away from the first and second line of the reserves, the incessant movement of motor transport and the dislocation of civil life. An air of repose surrounds the headquarters, but life is intense here also, a twenty-four-hour day of study and acts of judgment.

"What young colonels you have here," remarked the correspondent to a member of the staff.

"They are the men of the future," he replied. "Some of these young colonels are at their desks at 5 in the morning and go to their quarters in pleasant private dwellings nearby at 10 at night. They are relieved by others who work good on throughout the night."

General Joffre has six subordinate nerve centers in the six armies into which his forces are divided. The six generals commanding those armies, Pau, Fooh, Dalstein, Franche D'Esperay, Castelnau and Manoury, each with his general staff, are connected by direct telegraph and telephone wires with headquarters. General Joffre often talks over situations and gives orders by telephone. He also is in direct and frequent communication with Field Marshal French and Belgian headquarters, with Bordeaux and Paris.

A single sentinel paces in front of the entrance. Except for a few forester guards, there are no soldiers in General Joffre's village except the youngish men on his staff, picked for their talents from among the 50,000 officers of France. The roads of approach are watched by gendarmes, and it is impossible to enter except by a pass signed by one of a few select officials.

The headquarters of a commanding general used to be distinguished by orderlies and horses in front, and his rank could be pretty well determined by their number. Now it is the number of motor cars. Some fifteen or twenty long, high-power runners usually are lined up in the playground of the school house. There is no tooting of horns. The cars come and go quietly and swiftly; but for the most part, there is little coming and going. The vast business is transacted by wire.

General Joffre, when he goes to the headquarters of one of the armies, rides in an automobile fitted as an office. It locks inside, very much like the little drawing rooms of steamers. There is a writing desk and two divans are along the sides.

General Joffre himself appears in grave, calm mood and in vigorous health.

DUBLIN CHILD IS KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

DUBLIN, Ga., Nov. 26.—Dorothy, the young daughter of Mrs. F. A. Woodward, was killed by an automobile driven by W. Lee Burnett, of Fernoon. Dorothy was about six years old and with a younger sister had been riding on a truck about a block from her home. When she jumped from the truck the automobile driven by Mr. Lee struck the child and she sustained injuries in the head that caused her death about three hours later.

Mr. Lee deplores the accident and is not held responsible for it.

SOLDIERS FROM MEXICO ARRIVE AT GALVESTON

Rain Delays Work on Camp and Debarking Will Be Delayed

(By Associated Press.)

GALVESTON, Tex., Nov. 26.—General Frederick Funston and a portion of the fifth brigade, United States troops from Vera Cruz, Mexico, arrived off Galveston bay at 11:30 o'clock today on the army transports Cristobal, Kansas and Sumner.

A downpour during the last two days has prevented completion of the camp at Fort Crockett, and the quartermaster's department announced the troops probably will not debark until Friday or Saturday.

The total number of person leaving Vera Cruz on the evacuation by American troops is 4,412, as indicated by reports from General Funston. The transports Chritobel and McClellan and the chartered Ward liner Antilla having on board more than 300 refugees are making faster time than the remaining transports.

Thanksgiving dinner will be enjoyed by the troops on shipboard.

Immigration officials from Houston and Texas City are here to assist the local authorities in handling the ship load of refugees.

COTTON PRODUCTION COST OVER 8 CENTS PER POUND

Cost of Raising Staple Shows Big Increase From 1896 to 1910

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The cost of producing cotton averages about 8.24 cents a pound, or $20.35 an acre, according to Assistant Chief Nat C. Murray, of the federal bureau of crop estimates, in a report published today. These statistics, the latest available on the subject, are the results of the investigation made in 1910. A similar investigation in 1896 showed the production cost as 5.37 cents a pound, or $15.42 an acre.

Many inquiries, due, no doubt, to the great decline in the price of cotton which on November 1 averaged 6.3 cents a pound to producers compared with 12.1 cents, the average of the past five years on November 1, have been received by the department of agriculture. Yearly reports on the production cost are not made by the department, and the results of the 1910 investigation had not heretofore been announced.

It is pointed out by Dr. Murray that the two investigations indicate a material increase in the money cost of producing cotton between the two periods, the increase averaging more than 2 per cent a year.

CARRIES INJURED SISTER IN ARMS TO HOSPITAL

Brother of Woman Hurt by Thrown Rock Did Not Wait for Ambulance

While taking a cow to the barn in the rear of her father's home on Decatur street Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Pearl Finnesosky, of 16 Hill street, was struck on the side of her head just above her right ear with a piece of cobble stone thrown with great force, and was knocked unconscious. The gash was deep and bled profusely.

She was found by two negro girls, and they notified her father, I. Siegel, who has a store at 332 Decatur street and lives above the store. He summoned his son, Coolman Siegel, who has a store at 220 Decatur street. Coolman called Grady hospital over the telephone, but could not wait for the ambulance, so he gathered her up in his arms and ran with her all the way to the hospital.

Thursday morning Mrs. Finerosky was back at her home on Hill street in a very serious condition. The police believe the stone was thrown by a man waiting in the rear to rob the store.

THEATERS

There is the kind of vaudeville at the Forsyth this week that makes people glad that Mr. Keith created such a form of entertainment. The bill is a blending of good things—there is comedy and music and novelty and sensation, making a bill that is interesting and pleasing from start to finish. The attendance all the week has been quite up to the Forsyth standard and the matinee and evening performances today, Thanksgiving, will be to the utmost taking capacity of the theater.

The wonderful performance of the group of Chinese who do magic and acrobatical gymnastic acts has attracted much attention and Homer Lind and company in a singing novelty win. Hanks and Von Kaufman, Mellville and Higgins and the Doris Wilson company all add to the value of the entertainment.

For next week a "Seminary Scandal," a combination of pretty girls in specialties will be one of the feature acts and a comedy novelty will be the appearance of Joe Jackson the silent comedian.

The Forsythe's success is based on the fact that its attractions are high class, well presented, and that the theater is one of the most popular institutions in all Atlanta.

MRS. IDA LEACH DIES AT HOME OF BROTHER

Mrs. Ida Wingo Leach died Thursday morning at the home of her brother, J. A. Wingo, 80 Hemlesaw avenue.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. W. J. Wingo, two sisters, Mrs. H. Brooks, of Due West, S. C., and Miss Alla Logan Wingo, and one brother, J. A. Wingo.

The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence. The remains will be taken to Spartanburg, S. C., Thursday night.

Confederate veterans at the Soldiers' Home enjoyed a Thanksgiving party Wednesday tendered them by the children of Temple kindergarten, under the instruction of their teachers, Miss Gussie Cronheim and Miss May LaFontaine. Over fifty children between the ages of four and six visited the home with baskets of goodies, which they bestowed on the vets. Then youth and age played together in the merriest Thanksgiving celebration of the city. Left to right in the picture are Sol Benjamin Regenstein, Colonel G. H. Keith and Annie Wilensky.

AGED MINISTER DIES AT HOME IN KIRKWOOD

Rev. J. S. Embry Is Stricken With Paralysis—Fumeral Thursday

The Rev. J. S. Embry, superannuated minister of the North Georgia conference, died at his home in Kirkwood Wednesday afternoon from paralysis. He was sixty-nine years old.

Born in Wilkes county, Ga., in 1845, Dr. Embry studied for the ministry and was admitted to the North Georgia conference in 1871 in the same class with Dr. W. P. Lovejoy, whom he survived but one week. After serving the conference for thirty-five years, he was superannuated at the meeting of the conference in Milledgeville in 1906.

He is survived by his wife, one daughter, Miss Esther Embry, of Kirkwood, and four sons, W. L. Embry, Augusta, Ga.; H. M. Embry, Vienna, Ga.; E. P. Embry, Birmingham, Ala., and J. W. Embry, Kirkwood.

The funeral will be held from Harry G. Poole's chapel Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Rev. A. M. Hughlett will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Henry Face and members of the Atlanta Methodist Ministers' association. The interment will be in Camack, Ga.

BIG SWEET POTATO RESEMBLES PUMPKIN

W. M. Willingham, of 277 Glenwood avenue, has received a barrel of sweet potatoes from his brother, B. H. Willingham, of Thomson, the largest of which weighs 11 3-4 pounds. There were other record breakers in the barrel, but this particular potato resembles a small pumpkin.

PICKENS COUNTY FARMER IS VICTIM OF ASSASSIN

W. D. Reeves Killed by Man Who Shot Through Window of Home

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

JASPER, Ga., Nov. 26.—W. D. Reeves, a prominent Pickens county farmer residing near here, was killed this morning when an unidentified person crept to his window and fired one barrel of a shotgun into his head. Bloodhounds have failed to find any track. No one was in the room except Mr. Reeves at the time. An inquest will be held.

BOND COMMITTEE WILL REPORT ON DECEMBER 2

Body Believes Issue Should Be $3,500,000 and Department Needs Separated

Hope of definite action on the proposal to call an election for a big municipal bond issue for the school and other city departments is seen in the statement of Alderman J. R. Nutting that the bond committee will be ready to make its definite, detailed and final report to council at its next meeting, which will be December 2.

Alderman Nutting is chairman of the subcommittee of the general bond committee, and he states that he is waiting only on reports from two departments before he calls the smaller committee for its final session. During the coming week, he says, the general committee can probably agree upon details, and submit its report to council.

Then council will decide whether or not to call a bond election. The majority of the members are said to be heartily in favor of a bond issue.

Alderman Nutting says that the committee is preparing to cut as much as is consistent, with the idea of building for the future as well as caring for immediate needs, the estimates of the various departments as to the amount of money they need.

"The subcommittee agrees," said the alderman, "that the proposed issue should not exceed $3,500,000 at the outside, and we hope to make it considerably less than that. However, we simply must care for the departments, especially the schools."

The subcommittee is composed of Aldermen Nutting and Jesse W. Armistead and Councilman C. W. Smith. The general bond committee is headed by Alderman John S. Candler, and is composed of ten members of council, who are chairmen of the committees which supervise the various departments.

The tentative plan of the subcommittee is to list the bonds proposed for each department separately, so that the people can defeat bonds for one department without jeopardizing the entire issue, and curtailing improvements with which they are not in sympathy because they do not think the expenditure for a certain department to be necessary.

S. L. DOWLING HEADS LOWNDES COUNTY FAIR

Former Vice President Succeeds G. W. Varn, Who Declined Re-election

VALDOSTA, Ga., Nov. 26.—At its annual meeting Tuesday the Lowndes County Fair association elected S. L. Dowling president; C. S. Bondurant, vice president; Paul Myddleton, treasurer, and J. M. Ashley, secretary and general manager. G. W. Varn, who has been president for two years, declined re-election, and Mr. Dowling, former vice president, was chosen.

The directors are S. L. Dowling, C. S. Bondurant, G. W. Varn, J. J. Newman, J. E. Webb, H. F. Freeman, W. B. Connally, C. F. Clarke, H. G. Moore, J. T. Mathis, C. W. Barnes, J. D. Forbes, J. M. Ashley and W. S. West.

Plans were outlined for a 1915 Georgia-Florida fair on a larger scale than ever before.

MAYOR SAYS HE KEEPS OATH, AND WORD, TOO

Declares Forward Movement Bulletin Cannot Drag Him Into Controversy

The latest bulletin of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, which intimates that the organization may father a movement to recall Mayor James G. Woodward, invoked the executive's wrath when it was called to his attention by members of council Thursday.

"I don't propose to engage in any controversy with the organization," said the mayor, "for I have too much respect for the name 'religion' to bandy it about, and drag it in the mire, as the writers of these bulletins do.

"Let is suffice to say that the people of Atlanta haven't yet forgotten the sacreligious stuff the organization printed during my campaign of two years ago. As to the bulletin's reference to my oath of office, I might say that the people know that I keep not only my oath of office, but my word as well."

A significant portion of the bulletin numbered 150, which was referred to by the mayor, reads as follows:

"A divided city can only fall.

"Atlanta will endure. Let us get together.

"If Mayor Woodward and his advisors actually believe an official oath to be meaningless, and laws binding upon public officials only when public officials choose, let us not think of issuing bonds.

"Ten per cent of the registered voters can call an election to initiate legislation in Atlanta.

"Twenty-five per cent of the registered voters can institute an election to recall any official, whether he be mayor, councilman or member of a board in the city of Atlanta.

"An injunction can close today the law-breaking locker clubs and bars.

"We wish to help and not hinder the administration of Mayor Woodward.

"Mayor Gill, of Seattle, after a recall and a defeat learned the strength of decency inherent in every city.

"Atlanta can do better."

FOREST FIRES BURNING UNCHECKED IN ARKANSAS

Damage From Flames Amounting to $150,000 Is Reported From Helena

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 26.—Forest fires which have been burning in Arkansas for the last ten days continued unchecked today, and for the eighth day the sun has been obscured in Little Rock by dense clouds of smoke overhanging the city.

The most serious losses yet reported came from Helena last night, where damage of $150,000 was caused by the destruction of the Central Distilling company plant and the Dinning Furniture company, both destroyed, it is believed, as the result of wind-driven sparks.

From northern Louisiana comes reports that the fires in Arkansas have swept into that state and concern is felt for the safety of men engaged and plants used by the oil industry in the Caddo field.

Mississippi river traffic south of Memphis is said to be almost at a standstill because of the difficulty in operating steamers through the dense smoke overhanging the river.

En-Ar-Co Oil Soothes Sore Muscles

Julia F. Davis, Toronto, Ohio, writes:

"I fell and injured the muscles of my right leg. The pain has been very bad. Now I am using your En-Ar-Co Oil and it affords me instant relief."

Sore, stiff muscles and joints with pain at every movement become limber and painless when En-Ar-Co Oil (known for 30 years as The Wonderful Japanese Oil) is used.

When applied frequently to the part affected and well rubbed in En-Ar-Co Oil will quickly and permanently relieve bodily pain that can be reached from the outside. Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sprain, Painful Swellings, etc., yield at once. To insure yourself against these ills, keep a bottle at home. 50 cents at your druggist. Our Need for Ships.

The report of the federal Department of Commerce that European orders for cotton greatly exceed the available means of ocean transport emphasizes the long apparent need for an American merchant marine. At a time of unexampled opportunity to uphuild its foreign trade, the United States is handicapped by the lack of a sufficient number of vessels to meet ordinary demands. Wanting the facilities to reach established markets, how can we expect to develop new channels of commerce or to exploit new fields of business?

The law enacted at the last session of Congress, admitting foreign-built ships to American registry, has proved appreciably helpful. It removed many obstacles, as is evidenced by the fact that eighty vessels, comprising a gross tonnage of two hundred and eighty thousand, which three months ago were under British, German or Belgian flags are now flying the Stars and Stripes. Clearly, however, that law does not suffice the broad and pressing needs of the time; for, since October the nineteenth only four foreign-built ships have sought American registry, though the demand and the opportunity have grown apace.

The new navigation act is very liberal in its terms and in ordinary circumstances, it would seem, should serve the purpose in view. But if private interests are unwilling or unable to undertake the important task of developing a merchant marine adequate to the needs of the United States, then the Government itself should deal with the problem. The Administration is favorably disposed to the Alexander bill, which was introduced at the last session of Congress and which provides for a Government-owned merchant marine. Whether this measure is wise in all its provisions and prudent in all its possibilities is a matter for further consideration; but there is no doubt that by some means or other, this country must secure enough trade ships to take care of its foreign commerce.

Teaching by Motion Pictures.

There are pedagogues who object to everything that will smooth or brighten the steep and thorny path to knowledge. "Soon learned, soon forgotten," they say, and add a hundred other proverbs in the spirit of that ancient wisdom, "Spare the rod and spoil the child." Their theory seems to be that the more difficult the process of education can be made, the better it will be; wherefore, they draw back with a shrug from what they are pleased to call the "frills" of the present-day school room and insist that a child get his lessons in the sweat of his brow.

Happily, however, the tendency of modern teaching has been away from this doleful doctrine. The air of the kindergarten, which surely was inspired by some good fairy, is infusing all grades and all departments of our schools. The teacher who makes a thing easy by making it interesting and clear, who makes the recitation hour a part of the pupil's eager life and relates the subject in the book directly to human affairs is far more successful than the old-time pedagogue who stood as a taskmaster rather than a sympathetic friend.

Pictures have been playing a larger and larger part in schooling, and now we find the motion picture employed in this connection. A Pennsylvania teacher declares that a child can learn and remember more in ten minutes by watching a film which shows bees making honey than he could acquire in two hours by ordinary reading. "The photo-play of cotton growing, spinning and weaving," he says, "gives a definite knowledge which is lacking in a printed story." One can imagine the value of motion pictures in teaching history, geography and a number of the sciences. This method is impracticable, as yet, for many schools, but it promises much and doubtless will be established more and more widely.

Yet the owner of a mule is never sure that he hasn't a kick coming.

The old-fashioned battle that was decisively won or lost—where is that?

The pessimist, already in distress, is staggering under another blow. The steel business has begun to pick up.

Thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving Day never came with better grace to the people of the United States than in this placid and fruitful autumn of 1914. A country that is blest so bounteously with the riches of nature and the light of freedom has cause at all times for deep and hearty gratitude; but especially is this true in a year when other lands are impoverished and smoking and bleeding with war. Our very pity for the sorrows of the Old World imbues us with profound thankfulness for the concord and security in which our nation and our homes are held.

We are free from war, not only the war of embattled armies but the war of political bitterness, of hostile classes and divided interests. Differences that long disturbed our economic life have been settled, quietly and justly. The special privileges of the few have been supplanted with the equal rights of the many. The forces that tended to make government a matter of patronage for particular groups have given way to the larger and higher ideals of a true republic. The causes of agitation have ceased, because the wrongs from which agitation sprang have been rectified. We face an era of good feeling and constructive development.

The fact that our political life has been purged of old ills is a guarantee that our business life shall henceforth move swiftly and securely forward. The light of an ampler prosperity is dawning, prosperity based upon economic and social justice and vouchsafed to all men who seek it with honesty and intelligence. For these things, and for innumerable other blessings and hopes the people of the United States should make this a day of heartfelt and universal thanksgiving.

If we have the price of the turkey let us be thankful for that.

If your enemy has a poor memory, that is another thing to be thankful for.

And if the world fails to understand you, perhaps you ought to be somewhat thankful for that.

Whether the Mexicans will have cause for Thanksgiving in the departure of the Americans from Vera Cruz remains to be demonstrated.

Italy's Difficult Position.

Though the sober-minded statesmen of Italy are striving to preserve that nation's neutrality in the European struggle, the contrary pressure of events and of sentiment at home and abroad grows more and more pronounced. Turkey's entry into the war is a potential if not actual menace to Italian interests in the Balkans and in Tripoli. The traditional hatred of the Italian people toward Austria has been rekindled and intensified; and among the Allies, particularly Great Britain and France, there has developed of late an outspoken feeling that Italy should cast her strength squarely against the war cause of the Teutonic empires.

This insistence, or rather this appeal, rests upon the contention that a victory for Germany and Austria would mean a victory for Turkey, with consequences of far-flung peril to Italy's plans across the Adriatic and the Mediterranean. It is argued, further, that Germany and Austria would be swift to exact requitals for Italy's refusal to stand by the Triple Alliance, should they have the power to do so, and that, therefore, the interests of Italy and the interests of the Allies are in this respect at one.

It is clear that Italy's neutrality at the outset of the war was very valuable to the Allies. As one observer says: "It permitted the French Government to strip its Alpine frontier of troops and to mass its full force in the north and east to resist the Germanic invasion; and it is a reasonable inference that without this reinforcement, Paris might have been besieged, and the Allies, not the Germans, have been foiled in the long and bloody battle of the Meuse. Of course the appearance of the Italian fleet in the Mediterranean would have changed the naval situation materially." Of still greater value, however, would be the service which Italy could now render the Allies by an aggressive movement against their foe.

Naturally, then, they are employing every means of diplomacy to win Italy to their side. They urge that Italy as their colleague in arms will have much to gain in prestige and, perhaps, in territory, but that as a neutral power she can expect no special consideration from the Allies in the final settlement of affairs, while she may certainly expect, by reason of her neutrality grave problems if Germany and Austria are victors.

Meanwhile, Italian statesmanship remains cautious and cool. Whatever policy it may decide upon beyond that which now guides it will be the result of delicate and calculating thought. It was not driven to war by the Kaiser's threats; it will scarcely be deterred from war, should the nation's manifest welfare call for arms.

Even a turkey doesn't cut much ice unless it is well dressed.

Probably a great many turkeys will be glad to escape the high cost of living.

Invite all your friends to Thanksgiving dinner, so there will be plenty there to laugh at the man who carves the turkey.

Even the pessimistic chap might enjoy the good things he has if he wasn't kept so busy grumbling about the disagreeable things he expects.

Our Thanksgiving Turkey

By Frederic J. Haskin

On the 18th day of November a special train pulled out of Morristown, Tenn., bearing a most unusual class of passengers. The train was completely made up of cars specially designed to carry live turkeys in the most luxurious fashion. It was a long train and each car contained from 1,200 to 1,500 live turkeys each in good condition for the Thanksgiving dinner table. The train was billed directly through to New York with a special provision for dropping off several cars at Philadelphia.

* * *

The special cars for the unique train were planned to give to these fowls accommodation "deluxe" upon what is generally their first as well as their last journey. No paint were spared to provide for their comfort. The cars were thirty-six feet long and nine feet wide. Each was personally conducted, for in addition to the compartments for the fowls a stateroom is arranged in the center for the use of the man in charge. An aisle extends the length of the car and on each side are stacked the coops for the turkeys. All compartments have feed and water troughs which can be pulled out into the aisle to be filled and pushed back like a drawer. A water tank at the top of each car holds 357 gallons. It has a hose attachment reaching all the compartments. Below the car is a granary eight feet square reached by a trap door in the floor of the stateroom. The cars are so arranged that any single coop could be removed in transit in case any fowl die or should become ill, thereby keeping the whole load in a healthy condition. The coops are piled in tiers eight feet high, those containing the hen turkeys being usually nearest the floor.

* * *

The bringing of this trainload of turkeys from the south each year is one of the proofs that New England no longer stands first in the leading production of the country. The turkey production of the north has been steadily declining for the past ten years and the south is only able to partially supply the deficit. Tennessee is now a leader in turkey production, although Texas produces larger numbers and the Kentucky turkeys have lately come into prominence for their excellent quality.

* * *

New England turkeys still are ranked as the finest quality, although it is claimed that the best turkeys from the south and the west are now being put upon the market and sold for New England turkeys commanding a slightly higher price than if their real source were given. For many years a Rhode Island farmer named Vose raised a turkey each year for the president of the United States. This fowl was the finest that could be selected from the whole brood and was fed upon a special diet in order that he might acquire the highest perfection by Thanksgiving day. The turkey was always sent to the White House as a gift from the patriotic farmer, who died a couple of years ago. Now a Kentucky farmer desires to provide the White House Thanksgiving turkey and it is believed that the one sent to President Wilson last year from Kentucky did not fall below the New England bird in either size or flavor.

* * *

Probably no other farm product has decreased so notably within ten years as has the turkey crop. The number of turkeys upon the farms at the last census was 3,668,708. Ten years ago it was 6,594,695, a decrease approximating 50 per cent. While this is partially due to the disease known as "black head" it is believed that there are other reasons. The department of agriculture has only recently appointed a specialist to study all the conditions of turkey raising and report as to the causes for the decrease. It is hoped that this report will aid in increasing the annual turkey crop at least to its former importance. Some special experiments have been carried on at the experiment station at Kingston, R. I., for the purpose of checking the black head disease, but so far little if any result has been secured.

Black head is a peculiar disease and so far its causes have not been discovered. It has been confined almost exclusively to New England and has not given any noteworthy trouble in the southern states. The term black head is rather a misnomer because it is not a disease of the head, but of the digestive organs. One man has called it a double appendicitis. The turkey happens to be blessed or cursed with two organs which correspond to the appendix in the human anatomy. The disease known as black head has been found to originate in one of these organs. In advanced stages it causes adhesions of the liver. Most frequently it attacks young turkeys. Any digestive trouble is apt to discolor the head of a turkey in a manner similar to its effect upon the human complexion. Many fowls who upon examination have been found to have died of this peculiar disease have only slightly darkened heads.

* * *

Turkeys cannot be raised in large numbers under present methods. No real turkey farm exists as is commonly supposed. Most farms raise a few turkeys each season, but a flock of a hundred of these birds upon any one farm is a large one. They are free roving birds and do best when they have the range of a large farm. Artifical methods of breeding and incubation have not yet been successfully applied to any important extent in turkey raising and are not likely to be. Turkeys are seldom housed excepting in extreme winter and as they are most palatable when young, comparatively a small number are kept over each year for breeding purposes only. The turkey egg has no commercial value as food.

The two main market periods for turkeys are Thanksgiving and Christmas. The best developed birds are selected for Thanksgiving and those which have been a little behind in growth are held for Christmas. It is claimed that the meat of the Thanksgiving turkey has the finer flavor. One reason of this is that in New England the Thanksgiving turkey has the range of the farm within a few weeks of his shipment. He had a varied diet in which seeds of many kinds of plants formed a prominent place. Acorns have been known to be a favored food. This food variety gives a finer flavor to the meat than is possessed by the bird whose last few weeks have been spent indoors with feedings of regularly selected grains. Of ocurse a staple demand for turkey lasts throughout the cold weather, but Thanksgiving is the especial day.

No other bird has come into such general use for holiday time as has the turkey. It was a recognized dainty in England as far back as 1541 and from the finding of the first settlers graced most of the festal boards in this country. While imported turkeys were brought over from Europe at an early date the wild turkeys native to North America were found to be of high quality. The American bronze turkey of today originated from the union of the wild turkey with the imported domesticated variety. It is claimed that the original of our domestic turkey was native to the West Indies. It was taken first to Mexico by the Spaniards and afterwards in 1520 to Europe. It is a generally accepted fact that all the turkeys of the world have descended in some way from three forms known as the North American, the Mexican and the Honduras or Ocellated turkey, all of which are native to this hemisphere. About a standard varieties of turkeys are recognized by poultry breeders of this country, the chief difference between them being in their size and the color of their plumage. The bronze and the Narragansett are the largest and the black and white the smallest.

In different parts of the south turkey running becomes an important industry for a number of people a short time before Thanksgiving. A man will go along a regular route of farms buying turkeys a few at a time and collecting them in droves. He may have several assistants who will help him to line up hundreds of turkeys in a manner similar to a drove of cattle. Strange to say the turkeys follow along quite docilely when collected in this way and there is little difficulty caused by their running away. They are driven into the town from which they are to be shipped or prepared for cold storage. It is not unusual to see several thousand turkeys driven through the street in a perfectly orderly manner. In Cuero, Tex., a great celebration is held on turkey-driving day. The date of this day is fixed beforehand by the turkey buyers who will have the cars ready to ship all the turkeys which can be collected at that point. After the birds have all been collected the town makes merry in carnival fashion.

M. Demitrovitch Tchelisheff

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1914, by Frank Crane.)

A long, strange name, but you ought to get used to it, your children ought to learn it.

It is the name of the man who knocked vodka out of Russia.

Vodka is a sort of brandy or whisky distilled from rye, sometimes from potatoes. It was the Muscovite national intoxicant.

Like all highly alcoholic beverages it is a habit-former, with the usual results of poverty, laziness and craziness.

Like all alcoholic liquors it is a poison.

With that amazing absence of all moral sense that often characterized the people's rulers, the Russians made its manufacture and sale a government monopoly. That is, the state was supported by the deliberate poisoning and degeneration of its citizens.

The bureaucracy was enabled to buy its champagne by money gotten from the vodka consumed by the commons. Luxury as usual rode upon the back of penury.

Tchelisheff was just a man. He was born of the class sometimes called country-jakes. He was a house-painter by trade. But he was the man who by and by made Russia give up $500,000,000 annual revenue from its best-loved booze. And if you think that an easy task, try to get the supposedly intelligent English government to shut down its distilleries.

While the Russian house-painter was alderman of the town of Samara a drunken man killed his wife. It made such an impression upon Tchelisheff that he registered a vow.

He was shrewd, he made money, he became a member of the legislature. There he introduced a bill providing that any town that so wished might prohibit vodka, and requiring every bottle of the stuff to be labeled "poison." The bill passed. But the imperial council killed it. The autocracy did not propose to let go its profits. "The people be damned," said they, or words to that effect.

At last Tchelisheff got the ear of Czar Nicholas. Under some favorable combination of stars the czar acted.

The war broke out. The grand duke in command of the army by some good fortune had sense. Vodka was prohibited.

And now we are informed that in spite of the loss of $500,000,000 revenue from the poisoners, in spite of the paralysis of all forms of business on account of the war, savings banks show an increase of deposits; there is a boom in the sale of meats, groceries, clothing and house-furnishings, and the people are prospering generally.

It was an arbitrary measure of an autocratic government. We believe in democracy over here, but there are times when we would like to borrow the czar for a while.

And if Russia cannot spare the czar, perhaps she might lend us Tchelisheff.

How to Run a Social Center.

The attempt to find in the public schoolhouse a meeting place of neighbors, a community center appealing to grown-ups as well as to children, is now nation-wide. Our country is in the pains of giving birth to a new institution; a people's club.

This effort has proceeded, is proceeding, along two lines.

In each community are many worthy persons, mainly well-to-do women, ladies bountiful, used to the condescending spirit and ways of conventional charity, who like to do things for the less fortunate, to patronize the poor.

Their notion of the way to make a social center in the school is to fit up as a play place, with a trimming of carefully manicured instruction.

They believe in moving pictures; in plays, non-contentious lectures, choral societies, games—and genteel kind of recreation or amusement which they think might please, without exciting, "the lower classes."

But they shrink from free discussion of vital questions, with its risk that somebody may say something to ruffle their smooth plumage. They fear and fight free speech.

With much eclat, a number of such carefully safeguarded social centers have been opened in various cities as concessions to the "masses," but they have not thrived.

The other approach has had as its inspiration the belief that what is needed is not amusement merely, not patronage of the poor by the rich, not any form of endowment from above, but primarily free fellowship, free speech.

It holds that play is good if instinctive and self-managed; that it is fine to have lectures and pictures and all the other forms of uplifting entertainment; but that the main thing to be developed is freedom, democracy, the right of folks to do as they wish in the place which is their own.

Ella Flagg Young the other day at a meeting in Chicago of four hundred persons eager to advance a wider use of school buildings, glimpsed this freer point of view when she said:

"The social center experience has brought a surprise to us school people. We thought it would benefit the public; the men and women and young folks of the various communities. We found that it does; but it also does what we hadn't expected. It greatly and in most important ways benefits us school people. It connects us up with the life of today."

And she frankly added that the vital thing in it wasn't what a few could do for the many, but what folks meeting together as folks, democratically, did for each other.

If your school center hasn't thrived as a kind of secularized parish house, operated in the charity spirit, throw it open to unrestricted freedom of debate and conduct, letting the people govern themselves.

Maybe that's the way to make it hum.

THANKSGIVING.

Thanksgiving for the spark of life
That brought us on this earth;
Thanksgiving for the baby heart
Of innocence at birth.

We thank Thee, heavenly Father,
For our daily bread—
For poverty if Thou see best
Or luxury instead.
We thank Thee for the buds of spring
(So lovely in their prime,
When kissed by summer's blazing sun)
And the glorious autumn time.
We thank Thee for the winter's snow,
For the moon and stars above,
For mountains high and oceans wide,
And the wond'rous power to love.

Thanksgiving for Thy watchful eye
To guard through peace and pain,
Thanksgiving for the Christ who died,
That we may live again.

—JOHNNIE CURTIS WALKER.

The Ideal Husband.

Happiness in married life depends first of all on the ability of the husband to maintain as ardent a wooing after marriage as during the courtship. This is the opinion of one hundred Detroit wives, expressed in letters to the Rev. Howard A. Field, pastor of the Simpson M. E. church. The letters were requested by Mr. Field and the pastor based a sermon, "The Ideal Husband," on them. All agreed that the ideal husband must be an ideal lover. Other necessary qualities of an ideal husband in the order of their importance were fixed as follows:

He must be a lover of home.

He must be industrious even to the extent of being willing to roll up his sleeves and help tidy the house.

He must be morally pure—there can be no double standard of purity.

He must treat his wife as his equal—not as a servant.

He must be temperate.—Detroit Free Press.

PLANTS IN WINTER? WHY NOT?

(Copyright, 1914, by E. K. Wooley.)

Since pa has put gas into the furnace Ma Jenkins has complained that she can't keep any growing plants in the house.

"The gas just kills them," she bemoaned to pa. "And the house doesn't seem the same in the winter without any plants in it."

Pa missed the plants, too, though he tried to comfort ma by telling her that she was saved a lot of work if she didn't have to take care of a lot of plants every winter, and, he occasionally brought home a bouquet from the florist's to make up for the lack of bloom in the Jenkins household.

But ma couldn't be contented, so pa thrashed around in his mind until he had an idea.

"Say," he said to an architect friend, "I've been of these sun rooms. I haven't got any room to build one on to my house that I know of, but I don't spend a lot of money either. Suppose you step around and look at the place and see what you can do to fix up some kind of a place where my wife can keep her plants blooming through the winter, where the furnace gas won't get at 'em."

The architect friend stepped around and looked with the result that he and pa were soon figuring and pa began to wear that mysterious look at home which ma interpreted as "something doing." Upon inquiring what it was up, she was told to "hold her horses," which was all the satisfaction she got for a while.

But one day a wagon deposited some lumber in the Jenkins front yard. Then a couple of carpenters arrived. They took possession of the front porch and began to do things to it. They also took out one of the front windows, in spite of ma's protestations, and began cutting it to door size.

"Pa Jenkins," demanded ma that evening, "what are you having done to this house?"

"Wait and see," grinned pa. "By the way," he added, "I wouldn't be giving away any more plants if I were you."

Next day a lot of window sash arrived. The carpenters sawed and hammered and littered up the premises. "Men are the messiest things," complained ma as she picked up flying papers and swept out sawdust and shavings.

Finally the front porch was no longer a front porch. The architect friend who had been in possibilities inspected it. Pa went home early to inspect it with him. Ma also inspected it. And then was as pretty a sun room as anybody could wish.

"But won't it be too cold for the plants?" queried ma.

"Electric radiator," beamed pa. "That's why I had the base plug put in."

The next day was Sunday. Sunday is a useful day. One can do about the house what one hasn't time to on weekdays. Some would have said that pa and ma broke this particular Sabbath. The fact is, they improved the day. They "fixed up" that sun room. And when those two good tired people sat down to light lunch, it was with sighs of bliss, for ma's plants reposed in an artistic arrangement, where they could be a winter-long source of delight.

And that afternoon they sat in the little plant bower, the Jenkins canary thrilling his best, the Jenkins cat curled up on a cushioned chair, Mabel's pup stretched in a path of sunlight, the little electric radiator glowing gloriously, the big glass windows giving a view of the sky with big snow clouds gathering.

"Pa," said ma, with a happy little laugh, "you are a dear darling."

"This," quoth pa, stretching himself luxuriously, "this is the life!"

Linguists in War Time

One of the interesting sidelights on the European situation is the advantage which the Germans enjoy because of their ability to speak foreign languages with more proficiency than the allies. In a dispatch to the London Standard an English airman is quoted as saying that one of the greatest needs of the allies is interpreters for both the French and British troops. He tells of his own shortcomings in this respect:

"I regard the inexhaustible supply of men who know local languages as one of the chief facts of German efficiency in this war. We need absolutely all the interpreters they can get, and are suffering for lack of them. Very few British officers and hardly any soldiers speak even serviceable French. Over and over again I have myself been deliberately misled by apparent peasants who, I felt sure, were German spies."

The average German is a far better linguist than the average Frenchman or Englishman. In a measure this is due to the thoroughness of German scholastic methods, but it also is due to the fact that Germans who settle in foreign countries associate with the native inhabitants and assimilate their methods of thought and ways of doing business, whereas the Englishman holds himself aloof, and the Frenchman prefers the company of those who can speak French and thus relieve him of the necessity of learning another tongue.

It has often been pointed out that no matter in what part of the British empire an English official may be sent, he will find a little England awaiting him, with cricket or polo grounds handy, and most of the social customs and distinctions just the same as at home. Yet it is generally admitted that the Englishman has made an admirable colonizer, usually more superior to the German. Why is this?

Strange as it may seem, the Englishman's very refusal to master a foreign language has made him keep from becoming intimate with the subject races, and it certainly has been, in that his aloofness has endowed the native peoples with feelings of awe and respect.—Minneapolis Journal.

American Passports

We have no passport system in America—a thing to be thankful for. A citizen here is free to come and go as he pleases. No petty official can stop him and ask him his whereabouts or that he identify himself so long as such a citizen does not interfere with some one else's liberty, does not menace some one else's safety.

It is natural that a people that has such high regard for the individual citizen, that believes every man innocent until he proves himself otherwise, should occasionally be taken advantage of by persons of evil designs. Many have been taken advantage of in the present war. Passports were secured by men who were not citizens of this country and used for purposes of espionage in the war countries. One of the greatest heritages of mankind—American citizenship—has been desecrated and dragged upon.

President Wilson has signed an order which will insure henceforth that the bearer of an American passport is an American citizen and not an imposter. The new rules will make the obtaining of such a document somewhat more difficult than it was in the past and may slightly inconvenience American citizens going abroad. This, however, will be amply atoned for by the greater prestige which the American document is guarded from impositions and misuse, will carry in the future.—Chicago Tribune.

Quips and Quiddities

"Why don't you advertise?" asked the editor of the home paper. "Don't you believe in it?"

"I'm agin' advertisin'," replied the proprietor of the Hayseville racket store.

"But why are you against it?" asked the editor.

"If keeps a feller too durn busy," replied the proprietor. "Advertised in a newspaper one time about ten years ago and I never even got time to go fishin'."

COTTON REDUCTION IS DEBATED BY STUDENTS

Grady Class Wins in Contest With the Delphian Society

The Grady and Delphian literary societies at Georgia ech engaged in a debate Wednesday night on the subject, Resolved that the United States government should levy a tax on excess cotton acreage in 1915."

W. R. Tucker and L. A. Grabill, two prominent seniors, supported the negative side of the question for the Grady society, while Vasser Wooley, Jr., and J. Kiplinger argued the affirmative side of the question for the Delphian society.

The Grady debaters won the decision of the judges, the latter being the members of the English faculty of the school.

There has been a concerted effort on foot since Tech opened last fall to give the literary societies a conspicuous place among the student activities. President aMtheson believes the public is perhaps overly impressed with the mechanical side of the school, and hopes the literary and general educational features will show up through the medium of the literary societies.

AMERICAN WRITER IS BRIDE OF PARIS EDITOR

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Mrs. Bessie Van Vorst, American author, and Hughes Leroux, editor of the Matin, were married in this city today. M. T. Herrick, American ambassador; Etienne Lamy, member of the academy; Monsignor Batiffol and Marie Van Vorst were witnesses of the ceremony.

GERMANY DECLARES WOOD IS CONTRABAND

(By Associated Press.)

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 25.—(Via London).—The German declaration that wood is contraband of war has brought out considerable comment in the Swedish press. Five Swedish steamers laden with wood, it is recited have recently been stopped in the south Baltic by German cruisers and made to return to Swedish ports. The suggestion is now made in the press that Swedish cruisers convoy Swedish commercial vessels loaded with wood past the lines of German warships.

Our Dependence on Imports

(Saturday Evening Post.)

Five years ago about a third of the cattle hides used in the leather manufactures of this country were imported; but the native supply has relatively decreased, until at present between two-fifths and a half of the cattle hides used here are imported.

BUSINESS DEVELOPS IN WEST END

The fact that West End is rapidly developing into importance as a business district is a fact that has hardly occurred to most of us. But it is, as is amply evidenced by the progress of the West End stores.

Today an advertisement is appearing in The Journal from one of these shops, Polk's Department Store. This is a thoroughly up-to-date department store, furnished with a complete stock. So rapid has been its growth that its quarters need immediate expansion. The owners are, therefore, putting on a large cut-price sale to facilitate the necessary work.

All of this suburban business expansion is only another evidence of Atlanta's prosperous growth. The provincial condition of one business district is a thing of the past, and Atlanta is emerging into a state of many business centers.—(Advt.)

Making a Two-Day Affair of Thanksgiving With a Great, Fine Sale of Ready-to-Wear

A sale of Ready-to-Wear---suits, dresses and waists---done in the best Chamberlin - Johnson - DuBose Co. fashion.

The milk of the cocoanut is that having decided to treat certain suits, dresses and waists in the light of odd lots we go about their disposal in the thorough and gingery way that has long characterized our advertised sales.

So now, Madame, for the best Ready-to-Wear news told this season. That it should be told on Thanksgiving Day tinges it with poetic justice, for thereby do we give the day to an economic value that must appeal to the woman with a suit to buy.

But read on---

With Two Hundred Suits at Prices Very Near Half Now is the Time to Choose Yours

Two hundred suits! "How can any store call two hundred suits an odd lot?" You may well ask. But the point is, we do, in the treatment of prices, and prices are the objective since the styles are what they are---modish, charming, elegant.

Suits at $11.75	Suits at $15.00	Suits at $20.00	Suits at $25.00
Were $18.75 to $21.75	Were $25 to $29.75	Were $29.75 to $39.50	Were $40 to $57.50

The Prices

A Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. sale price is a very unreasonable thing, but unreasonable in a way that is attractive to women. In this instance let us record—the prices do not even closely approach the value of the suit. We take this opportune time to effect a clearaway of two hundred suits. And at these prices we will do it! Let those who have suits to buy be advised.

The Styles

There must be upwards of forty different styles to choose from—we can picture them only in generalities—very severe tailored suits, suits very much trimmed with braids, velvets, furs, buttons—coats of medium length and long, graceful redingotes, cutaways that combine the beauties of both long and short coats, short in front, long behind. Plain tunic and plaited skirts.

The Materials

At $11.75 serges and poplins; at $15.00 gabardines, serges, cheviots and poplins; at $20.00 broadcloths, serges and gabardines; at $25.00 rich broadcloths, serges and gabardines.

There is not a wanted shade missing; plenty of blues and browns, a scattering of greens, another few of plum shades, a host of black suits—there are two hundred suits. All from our own stock.

$3.75 For $5.75 to $11.75 Blouses

Nets, Laces, Chiffons

Some fifty waists, styles most liked for wear with suits. Black, navy, Copenhagen, brown, black-and-white effects; chiffons over nets, laces over nets, figured nets. High and low necks, with soft plaited ruchings, vest effects; yoked affairs; long and three-quarter length sleeves—about as many styles as there are waists. It is a clearing up of stocks—not one of these was less than $5.75 and from that they went through $7.50, $8.75 to $11.75.

The Coats! The Coats!

One smart affair after another.

Such a display that must mean satisfaction to the woman who is in search of a coat. Inexpensive coats? Yes. Many kinds that look, that are worth more than their price, $9.75. From that they go gradually up to $35 and $45. Novel styles in broadcloths, zibelines and velvets—in which belts play an attractive part.

Smart, Trim Serge Dresses---A Sale

The power of just doing things!

Here we are with an as likely and likeable a little collection of serge dresses as a woman could possibly enjoy, and yet we have done such pricing as the veriest January Sale would hardly bring. But we will do things in the way of selling dresses, and that at the time when women are seeking little dresses to wear with coats.

Dresses at $5.75	Dresses at $8.75	Dresses at $11.95
Usually $6.95 to $8.75	Usually $10 to $12.50	Usually $18.50 to $25

Those now $5.75 are simple, neat little affairs of navy and black serge, with trimmings of silk braids, several styles of skirts, full length sleeves, low collars. Among those now $8.75 are a number of styles with belts placed low, with natural waist line; many are serge and satin combined—in tunics, in sleeves. Those now $11.75 are notable values, recently arrived, they show advance style ideas, plain flare skirts, fur trimmings, choker collars, metal embroidery, sashes and girdles of self materials—black, navy, brown, green.

Thanksgiving Holidays Marked By Many Beautiful Dances

Two brilliant dances on Wednesday evening marked the beginning of the Thanksgiving holidays. The Nine o'Clock German club gave its first dance of the season at the Piedmont club, the occasion assembling the debutantes and their guests and a large number of the married membership.

The guests assembled at 9 o'clock and the ladies present drew for the pearl necklace donated by Mr. Eugene V. Haynes. The beautiful trophy fell to Mrs. Milton Dargan, Jr. Following its presentation dinner was served in the main dining room and later dancing was enjoyed.

Each table was decorated with pink roses and chrysanthemums encircled with garlands of smilax. Silver candlesticks held pink silk shades and the mints were served in rose paper baskets. The ball room was a bower of palms and ferns and here dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

Fraternity Ball Splendidly Attended.

At the Capital City club 400 college men and girls attended the brilliant ball given by the Tech chapter of the Sigma Phi Epsilon to the visiting conclave. Many of the alumni were also in attendance and the occasion proved a most enjoyable event among the fraternity men and their guests.

The club apartments throughout were gay and festive with college pennants hung over doors and windows and festooned from the ceiling. Palms and ferns adorned the ball room and in addition large quantities of cut flowers were used. The punch bowls were imbedded in smilax and pink roses and during the evening a buffet supper was served.

Atlanta Girl to Unveil U. D. C. Monument at Knoxville, Tenn.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 26.—Miss Elizabeth Atlee, of Atlanta, daughter of Mr. Frank Atlee and granddaughter of Colonel Frank A. Moses, of Knoxville, will unveil, Saturday, the monument erected on historic Fort Sanders, in this city, by the U. D. C. in memory of the soldiers who met their fates in the famous battle during the Civil war.

Mrs. J. O. Hardwick, of Atlanta, daughter of Colonel H. C. Ruff, also of Atlanta, who was killed in the battle of Fort Sanders, will be present. It will be recalled that the pocketbook lost by Colonel Ruff during the battle and which was found by a Union soldier, who later removed to Ohio, was returned to Mrs. Hardwick about one year ago.

Colonel Moses was color-bearer of the Sixty-third Tennessee infantry during the engagement, and he will be one of the prominent figures at the unveiling of the monument. This battle was fought in Knoxville, November 29, fifty-one years ago. An interesting coincidence is the fact that the battle was fought on Sunday, and an appropriate program has been prepared for the occasion.

INTERESTING GOSSIP OF INTERESTING PECPLE

The advent of the pro-holiday season will usher in the annual change of features at the American national playground for young and old, the New York Hippodrome.

In accordance with custom and tradition the current offering, "Wars of the World," is undergoing alteration, to permit of the interpolation of special numbers of particular interest to the children.

"Baby Eyes," a number introducing merry gnomes and massive living dolls, has been expanded to the extent of becoming a real feature; while more clowns, more animals and more human feature numbers have been added for the babies, and have lent a purely holiday aspect to the attraction.

This is the period where children revel, where grown-ups try to be children and when "old-crabs" forget their tribulations to join in the happy festivities of the season. The New York Hippodrome, which has always been headquarters for that sort of thing—for pure childish joy, for fun and frolic—is preparing to outdo itself.

MARY GARDEN CONTESTS IN ARMY.

A special dispatch to the New York Review says that English peeresses may be Red Cross nurses, and American society women can fit out field hospitals, but it has remained for Mary Garden —"Our Mary"—with the Titian hair and the laughing lips, to emulate Ouida's little heroine in "Under Two Flags," and offer to fight in the ranks as a soldier of France.

Indeed, if General Gallieni, the commandant of the Paris garrison, had not himself been one of the most devout lovers of opera, and therefore level that Mary was more peeded on the operatic stage than the firing line, there would have been a little blonde Zouave answering to the name of Garden at roll call now.

Last Saturday there appeared at the offices of the commandant of the Paris garrison a trimly uniformed Titian-haired youth, of somewhat effeminate bearing, who presented himself to the recruiting officer for enlistment in the army—a Zouave regiment preferred, because he dearly loved the picturesque uniform of the French Zouaves.

The suspicions of the officer were aroused and he reported to his superiors that the candidate did not seem exactly what he represented, possibly he might be a German spy in disguise.

Later the "boy" tearfully confessed that she was a girl and her name was Mary Garden.

Afterward the whole story leaked out. "Yes, I tried to enlist in the French army," said Miss Garden last night. "Why not? I owe France more than I can ever repay, even by giving her my life, and I am sure that I could fight as well as any man if they would only let me. I have never failed to subdue every man I have met so far."

The Original Hand Shake.

The hand shake as an evidence of amity and friendship is a universal custom of long standing, says an "American Boy." It had its origin in military circles, and the original hand shake was between soldiers who wished to assure each other of friendly intentions. Approaching with outstretched open hands showed that they held no weapons and the clasp completed the ceremony.

The habit of shaving the beard is also reported to have originated for military reasons. In the days when the Phalanx of Alexander the Great swept into Asia, it was discovered that the full beard offered an all too convenient hand hold for the enemy in hand-to-hand struggles, and Alexander ordered his fighting men to shave.

SUFFERED AWFULLY NOW QUITE WELL

A Lady's Suffering Was So Intense, That at Times, She Was Unable to Straighten Her Body

Walnut, N. C.—"About 12 years ago," says Mrs. S. W. McClure, of Walnut, "I began to fail in health, getting worse all the time. I wasn't able to do my work, suffering awfully at times with pains in sides, especially the right side, and none of the time was I well.

Sometimes I could not straighten up my body for the intense suffering. I suffered more or less all the time, and was irregular.

As Cardui had helped others, I started trying it. I bought six bottles, and after using two or three bottles, I commenced improving, getting better all the time, until I was entirely well.

I became strong and healthy, gained flesh, weighing 120, being just a shadow when I commenced taking Cardui. My work is a pleasure, and I feel like doing my work since, for the cure was permanent, and I have been well and strong ever since.

Cardui is a fine medicine for suffering women, and I recommend it to all my friends who have womanly trouble."

Thousands of women have written to tell of the help Cardui has been to them. Cardui is a mild female tonic, acting especially on the womanly organs. It has shown itself of great value to sick, weak women. It is surely worth a trial.

Begin taking Cardui today.—(Advt.)

Opening of The Standard Club

The opening of the season at the Standard club was the occasion of the beautiful ball given Wednesday evening, when several of the debutantes of the season, including Miss Edith Weil, Miss Erma Schoen, Miss Hettie DeWald and Miss Madge Grosman, were formally presented to society.

A color scheme of green and white was used in the handsome ball room. The walls had a mural decoration of delicate smilax studded with cotton bolls and miniature bales of cotton were distributed as souvenirs. Clusters of white chrysanthemums showed in charming relief against the background of palms and ferns used in the dining room, and a stringed orchestra rendered bright dance music from a palm-embowered alcove.

WEDDINGS

Salter-Akers

A beautiful morning wedding was that of Miss Martha Akers and Mr. James Crisp Salter of Montgomery, Ala., which was solemnized Wednesday at 11 o'clock at the Trinity Methodist church, Rev. Luke Johnson officiating.

The altar was banked with palms and ferns and tall vases of feathery white chrysanthemums completed the artistic decoration of the church.

The ushers were Dr. J. W. Hurt, Mr. S. F. Boykin, Mr. M. D. Floersch and Mr. H. B. Johnston. The groomsmen, Mr. A. F. Akers and Mr. Edward Fitzgerald Salter, of Montgomery, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and Mrs. H. B. Johnston, sister of the bride, was matron of honor.

The bridesmaids were Miss Frances Coleman and Miss Lillian Bloodworth.

The bride wore a suit of midnight blue broadcloth, trimmed in fur, and hat to match. She carried bride roses, showered with valley lilies.

The matron of honor wore pink crepe de chine, trimmed in dutchess lace, and hat of gold lace and pink ostrich tips. She carried pink roses.

The bridesmaids wore pink crepe de chine and lace with large pink hats and carried pink roses.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. F. M. Akers.

Mr. and Mrs. Salter left immediately for their wedding trip and on their return will make their home in Montgomery.

Reilly-Donahue

The many friends of Mr. J. J. Reilly, the popular depot master of the Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific Railway company, Cincinnati, Ohio, were agreeably surprised to learn that he was married Thursday morning to Mrs. Mary C. Donahue, of Atlanta. The ceremony was performed at the Immaculate Conception church, Rev. Father Kennedy officiating. The attendants were Mrs. W. B. Fromeyer and Mr. James F. Donahue.

After an extended tour of the east, the couple will be at home at 223 Albion place, Mount Auburn, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The bride was formerly Miss Mary Molloy, of Cincinnati.

Gouge-Allen

Mrs. Sarah Frances Gouge, of Lawrenceville, Ga., announces the marriage of her daughter, Martha Era, to Mr. Charles C. Allen, of Atlanta, the ceremony having been solemnized on Sunday, November 22, Rev. H. F. Wood officiating.

Cabaniss-Thiesen Wedding Beautiful Event in Pensacola

The wedding of Miss Petrea Thiesen, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Thiesen, and Mr. Royston Cabaniss, of Atlanta, was a beautiful event of Tuesday evening in Pensacola, Fla., the ceremony being performed at the German-Lutheran church in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends. Rev. J. F. W. Reinhardt officiated.

A profusion of handsome white chrysanthemums and pure white roses were used in the artistic decoration of the church, the snowy blossoms making a striking contrast to the green of palm and fern. The arches were wreathed with smilax and clusters of white chrysanthemums marked each pew.

Wedding Party.

The bride, who entered with her father, was beautiful in her wedding robes of lustrous duchess satin, the rare lace which veiled the bodice was introduced upon the skirt, her tulle veil draped from a coronial of fragrant orange blossoms fell in graceful folds to the edge of the long court train, and her bouquet of pale pink orchids showered with lilies of the valley lent a touch of French color. Her only ornament was a pearl pin the gift of the groom.

Miss Olga Thiesen was maid of honor and wore a girlish gown of pale pink crepe de chine with overdrapery of tulle and carried white roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. R. J. Thiesen was matron of honor and her gown of rose pink crepe was draped with tulle and effectively garnitured with crystal and she carried white roses.

Miss Susie Golden, of Columbus, Miss Matrina Thiesen, of Copenhagen, and Miss Blanche White, of Pensacola, were bridesmaids and were gowned in soft white satin clouded with tulle and carried arm bouquets of pink roses.

Mr. Eugene Dickey was Mr. Cabaniss's best man, and Mr. Carol Cabaniss, Mr. Otey Mitchell, Mr. R. J. Thiesen, Mr. Henry Thiesen were groomsmen. The ushers were Messrs. John Acosta, Herman White, Warren Anderson and Edward White of Pensacola.

The Reception.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception to the bridal party and relatives and intimate friends of the family, was held at the handsome home on West Gregory street.

Mr. and Mrs. Cabaniss, Mr. and Mrs. Thiesen, and Mr. H. H. Cabaniss, father of the groom, received in the front drawingroom, assisted by the bridal party, the decorations here carrying out the pink and white tones, as they did throughout the entire wedding.

At the bride's table were seated the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Royston Cabaniss, and Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Thiesen, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. J. White, Miss Olga Thiesen, Miss Susie Golden, Miss Katherine Thiesen, Miss Blanche White, Miss Florence Halsey, Miss Florida Zellus, and Messrs. Eugene Dickey, Mr. Carol Cabaniss, Mr. Otey Mitchell, Mr. Henry Thiesen, Mr. Warren Anderson, John Accosta, and Herman White.

Mr. Cabaniss who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Cabaniss is prominent in the business and social world and is a popular member of all the clubs. The pretty bride as Miss Petrea Thiesen has been a frequent and lovely visitor and will be a charming addition to the young married contingent. The series of entertainments planned for Mr. and Mrs. Cabaniss upon their return from a trip of several weeks will lend an additional brightness to the approaching holiday season.

Carefully Treat Children's Colds

Neglect of children's colds often lays the foundation of serious lung trouble in later life. On the other hand, it is harmful to continually dose delicate little stomachs with internal medicines or to keep the children always indoors. The ideal way to avoid colds is to keep plenty of fresh air in the bedroom and at the first sign of trouble apply Vick's "Vap-O-Rub" Croup and Pneumonia Salve over the throat and chest, covering with a warm flannel cloth. The body heat releases antiseptic vapors that are inhaled all night long, opening the air passages and healing the inflamed membrane. In addition, Vick's is absorbed through the skin, taking out the soreness and tightness. Vick's contains no harmful drugs whatever. At druggists—25c, 50c, and $1.00.

Thanksgiving

Now some are thankful for the health,
And some for raiment fine,
And some are thankful for the wealth
Or their ancestral line;
And some are thankful for their brain,
And some because they have Aunt Janet
Or other kinsfolk dear.
But full of gratitude I am
To live where there is peace;
I'm thankful for my Uncle Sam,
And proud to be his niece.

Wall-Peterson

DOUGLAS, Ga., Nov. 26.—The marriage of Miss Gussie Peterson and Mr. Dan Wall was solemnized Tuesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samantha Parish. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Pearson, and immediately Mr. and Mrs. Wall left for a short trip to Jacksonville. Upon their return they will keep house on Madison street.

Mrs. Wall is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peterson. She possesses a remarkably sweet voice, and has studied at St. Louis.

Mr. Wall is cashier of the Bank of Douglas and clerk of the superior court.

Among those who attended the marriage here were Miss Allie Fales of Fitzgerald, Mr. Carroll Redlhan, Mr. Ben Lane, Mr. Dick Williams, Mr. Joe Yeomans, Mr. Elisha Grantham, Mr. Cincinnati, Mr. Ora Fales.

Why Throw Shoulders Back

(Philadelphia Ledger.)

Physical directors who advise people to "throw out the chest" were severely criticised the other afternoon by Dr. Irving Whalley, who lectured before 175 teachers and parents at a meeting of the Home and School association on "The Chest and its relation to health."

Throwing back the shoulders while taking deep breathing is harmful for several reasons, according to Dr. Whalley, who says that it not only interferes with deep breathing by tightening the muscles covering the front of the chest, and thus increasing resistance, but that it lessens chest capacity. It also destroys the normal curve connecting the health of the lungs and renders them more susceptible to the germs of consumption and pneumonia.

The right way to breathe is to raise the shoulders. This lessens muscular resistance, makes breathing easier and shows that the lungs are full of air the shoulders assume the proper position, according to the doctor, who said that deep breathing and properly curved spine were great factors in health and longevity.

FALL AND WINTER FASHIONS—COATS, CAPES, AND GOWNS OF THE VERY LATEST DESIGNS

TOP COATS RETURN TO FASHION'S FAVOR.

The top coat is regaining the favor it lost a few years ago when the tailored suit became the popular street costume for cold weather wear.

But the latest version of the top coat is something more than a utility garment—as it comes from Paris developed in broadcloth of navy blue, or brown, with gracefully draped sash and pleated skirt—it's a thing of beauty as ornamental as it is useful.

Fashion Notes

NEW BLOUSES.

A newly imported chiffon blouse is of gray, to wear with a gray velvet suit, lined with blue chiffon. The bodice shows embroidery of silk to yoke depth in back. Another new blouse is made of white chiffon, tucked, the tucks outlined with black silk. This black stitching on white is a note of many of the new blouses and it is decidedly effective. A white satin blouse shows embroidery in blue, red, yellow, and green glass beads in a band around the neck and down the fronts. A rolling collar rises above the embroidered band.

SERGE AND SATIN TOGETHER.

Serge and satin are now combined, and many a serge frock, with a long serge tunic, has a black satin foundation skirt and other touches of black satin. Sometimes there is a moyen age slip of blue serge with black satin foundation skirt and black satin sleeves that reach to the knuckles.

APRONS.

Some of the new evening models have apron drapery in the front, and an odd thing about it is that the apron section falls longer than the foundation. The apron is of metallic lace.

HALF TULLE AND HALF VELVET.

An evening gown of black velvet shows a bodice made half of velvet, half of tulle. One side of the bodice is of velvet, and the other half of tulle, so that one shoulder is visible through folds of tulle, the other invisible through folds of velvet.

Popularity of Colors.

Geranium red is still listed as a popular color, and some results of geranium red wool have been seen among the newest models. Brilliant red is used in velvet evening frocks. That deep shade of blue called midnight is another popular color in velvet in which it is especially rich and beautiful, and sapphire blue is another popular shade of that color. Purple is used, sometimes combined with cerise or American beauty red, and on a scarf that not long ago was voted ostrich feather was used with an American Beauty rose.

Chiffon With Velvet.

In a velvet coat suit, which is made of chiffon velvet, the cape collar is of fur. The coat is lined with chiffon velvet.

FASHION FROWNS ON ELABORATE STYLES.

Although it comes from no less exclusive a designer than Doucet, and its price tag carries three figures the chief charm of the gown is its simplicity.

From the simply gathered blouse to the tunic with its straight pleats it is built on lines of classic simplicity. The gown itself is made of brown broadcloth combined with underskeeves of cream tinted charmeuse satin. The deep girdle is also of satin, heavily embroidered in brown.

POCKETS FOR MUFF IS FASHION'S LATEST FANCY.

The cape-muff is one of fashion's latest inventions. The cape is rather a voluminous affair, falling in graceful folds from the shoulder well below the waist line in the back—the muff is nothing more nor less than two long, narrow pockets set into the lining of the front widths just where the hands slip into them conveniently.

The models that Paris has sent "over seas" to introduce the cape-muff to America are made of both moleskin and velvet.

Queen Mary Thanks Wife of Mr. Herrick.

A special cable to the New York Herald says that deep appreciation of the work done by American women for the wounded British soldiers in Paris is contained in a letter sent by Queen Mary, of England, to Mrs. Myron T. Herrick, wife of the retiring American ambassador to France. Mr. and Mrs. Herrick will leave for the United States on November 28. They have engaged passage on board the Rochambeau.

Mr. Herrick has received many letters of thanks for his work in aiding war victims. Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign minister, has written to him and Mr. David Lloyd George, the chancellor of the exchequer of Great Britain, has sent a letter of thanks to Mr. Herrick "in behalf of the British government" for his services to British subjects.

The leaving of Mr. and Mrs. Herrick will, at their desire, be as quiet as possible. There will be no farewell banquets or any other demonstrations because, as the ambassador says, these days in France are extremely tense and sad.

Mr. Herrick and his wife have received invitations from persons distinguished in public life in France and England to stop with them before leaving Europe, but they declined.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

No matter where your home may be,
Though north or south or east or west,
Of all the places on the earth
It is to you the very best.

Of course it is. It is very right and proper that it should be. Peter Rabbit says that he wouldn't think much of any one who didn't think his own home the very best place in the world. Just because it is home you love it. And you love all its surroundings, even when they are not at all beautiful. And so when it happens that you move your home to some other place you think of the place you have left, and there is a great deal of love and affection for it in your thoughts. That is just the way it was with Old Man Coyote. He was living on the Green Meadows, and he was very well satisfied there, but once in a while his thoughts would go back to his old home, the home where he had learned a great deal of the cleverness which made him the smartest and most feared of all the Green Meadows people. He never had mentioned that old home until now. Sammy Jay had said that he would like to hear about it, and somehow Old Man Coyote felt just like telling about it.

"It was in the west, the great, wide, wonderful west," said he with a far-away look in his eyes.

"Is it as great and wide as the Green Meadows?" asked Sammy Jay.

Old Man Coyote looked at Sammy pityingly. "So much greater and so much wider that I could trot and trot for days and days and not reach the edge," he replied.

Sammy looked as if this was hard to believe, but he said nothing, and Old Man Coyote continued: "The sky was blue, the grass was greener, and the very air was sweeter than any you have known."

Sammy had it on the tip of his tongue to say that he didn't believe a word of this, because no sky could be bluer than the one over them that very minute, no grass could be greener than that of the Green Meadows, and no air could be sweeter than that which he breathed every day; but just in time he remembered that Old Man Coyote was talking of his old home, and that that made a difference. Sammy was smart enough to know that these things might seem so much better to Old Man Coyote just because they concerned his old home. So Sammy held his tongue and listened while Old Man Coyote went on.

"Out there is room, plenty of room for every one—room enough to turn around without hitting your tail against your neighbor. There's plenty to eat and life is really worth the living out there."

"Don't you think it worth the living here?" asked Sammy. "I notice you took the greatest care not to get in one of those traps. If it is such a wonderful place, why did you leave it to come here to the Green Meadows?"

Old Man Coyote hung his head a wee bit as if ashamed of something. "I didn't leave it because I wanted to," he replied in a low voice.

Sammy stared down at Old Man Coyote in round-eyed wonder. Somehow, he couldn't think of anybody who could make Old Man Coyote so smart as Old Man Coyote do anything he didn't want to.

"Why—why did you leave, then?" he asked.

"Because I was caught in one of these things and taken away," growled Old Man Coyote in a very low voice, as if both angry and ashamed that such a thing could happen.

"Oh!" gasped Sammy in a low voice. "Oh, I thought you knew all about traps."

"I was careless," replied Old Man Coyote very simply.

Furs and Furbelows

(Vogue.)

As to furs, a muff and neckpiece of velvet with the merest scrap of fur as trimming is all that the true Parisienne allows herself this year. Soldiers must have medicine and bandages and warm clothing for the cold nights spent in the trenches, and all the money that can be spared is invested in these supplies for the army. There is also the unhappy fact that, while her American sister is wearing bands of fur on her winter frocks, the Parisian is wearing bands of crepe.

Avoiding Them

(New York Mail.)

Ray Rohn, the artist, appeared at the Pay-as-You-Enter club the other day smoking a cigarette in a holder nearly a foot long.

"What's all this?" someone asked him. "Did the doctor tell you to keep away from cigarettes?"

GRAY HAIR

Darkened—Sure Pop—So Evenly No One Can Tell

When your hair turns gray, faded, streaked with gray or prematurely gray, simply apply, on retiring, like a shampoo, Q-Ban Hair Color Restorer to the hair and scalp. Soon the gray disappears and the hair becomes beautifully dark, evenly and completely (even to edges where hair joins the scalp) that no one can tell you use anything. Although not a dye, Q-Ban acts on the hair roots and makes the hair dark, lustrous, soft, fluffy, thick, healthy and abundant and stops itching scalp and dandruff. Q-Ban is a simple, harmless, clean preparation, not sticky or messy, and makes a splendid hair dressing. Money back if it doesn't satisfy you in every way. SHE DARKENED HER GRAY HAIR

A Kansas City Lady Darkened Her Gray Hair and Stimulated Its Growth by a Simple Home Process.

She Tells How She Did It.

A well-known resident of Kansas City, Mo., who darkened her gray hair by a simple home process, made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray or faded hair, stimulate its growth and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, 1 small box of Barbo Compound and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every night and morning for the gray hair is darkened sufficiently, then every two weeks. This mixture relieves scalp troubles and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair. It does not stain the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray haired person look 10 to 20 years younger."—(Advt.)

Turkey Day Battles Hold Sway on Many Southern Gridirons Today

Tigers Draw Last Turkey Day Game Here Thursday

Today will see the last Turkey day football game between Tech and Clemson, for some time to come at least. The Jackets have formally announced their new connection with Auburn, whereby the Plainsmen appear here on Thanksgiving instead of earlier as has been the case heretofore. As yet no contract for a meeting between the two teams next year has been signed, and it is not at all certain that a game will be played by them.

This means that the contest today is going to prove a very lively affair, or else a lot of dope has gone wrong again. Last year in spite of the fact that Tech won by a large score the game was a rough and tumble affair from the jump. No less is expected this year, and add to this the fact that Clemson is coming down with the firm and forceful intention of redeeming themselves for that 1913 defeat, and it is easy to imagine that one of the warmest scraps ever staged anywhere is on tap.

Indications point to the fact that a large crowd will be out to see the game. The attendance at last Thursday's game between Auburn and Georgia showed a big decrease from the 1913 figures. However, this was due no doubt in a measure to the fact that Auburn expected an easy victory for Auburn. If there are any who look for a one-sided battle today, an awakening which will rapidly assume the proportions of a shock is due. Coach Heisman does not look for an easy victory. The Tech team anticipations are no snap, and local Tech alumni, who have kept closely up with the work of the Tech team throughout the season, fail to see where the Jackets can look for a walkover.

Incidental to the announcement that Tech will play Auburn here on Thanksgiving next season come other announcements of keen interest to local fans. Among others, it is announced that Georgia will meet Virginia here on October 23. The Red and Black will come back a week later to tackle Auburn here. The Georgia-Tech game will be fought out on November 13, while the Athenians will have their Thanksgiving game with Clemson in Athens. This arrangement, it is announced will cover a period of one year, and was made primarily to give the Athens fans a home game on Turkey day.

Vandy Heavier Than Sewanee

While Commodores Outweigh Tigers Three Pounds to Man, It Will Be One Tough Struggle on Dudley Field Today

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 26.—Both elevens primed for the fray and coached up to the last degree, Vanderbilt and Sewanee meet here today in their annual football classic, furnishing the feature battle of the S. I. A. A. finals.

Comparative figures on the two teams give Vanderbilt an advantage of three pounds to the man. Vanderbilt's line will be much heavier than Sewanee's, the Commodore forwards averaging 167 pounds to the man against 170 for Sewanee, thus giving the Gold and Black a decided advantage here in the matter of weight. Sewanee's backfield, however, averages 156 pounds, per man against Vanderbilt's 153, while Sewanee's ends average 172 against Vanderbilt's 159.

Both teams now appear to be in perfect shape and odds favor neither of the two in the Thanksgiving battle.

Line up follows:

VANDERBILT.	SEWANEE.
Beams, 163, l. e.	Parker, 185, l. e.

Governors and Josephus Daniels Aomng oNtables on Sidelines When Virginia and Tar Heels Stage Big Clash at Richmond

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 26.—Governor Craig and six trainloads of North Carolinians; Governor Stuart, Josephus Daniels and the presidents of the rival universities are here for the Virginia-North Carolina football game.

The weather is ideal. In the season's record the teams are about even. In the averages North Carolina has superior speed, weight and experience, but Virginia trusts to speed to win.

The probable line up:

Tigers Expect Big Things for 1915 Season

Jennings Strengthens Infield, and Believes His Young Pitchers Will Show Big Improvement Over the past Season—Covaleski Did Great Work

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 26.—The Tigers are already hopefully looking forward to next season, when they believe they will be in the race for the American league pennant with a real chance. There are several things that makes them believe that.

First, they will have a stronger pitching staff next season than they did this, second, they will be improved in the infield, and third, unless something unexpected happens they will have their complete outfield in the game from the start of the season to the finish.

The Tigers reaped the results of their new pitchers secured from the minors here, but very late, Jennings showed himself to be a star early and he has been the main prop of the hurling staff. But Dubuc and Cavet, a right-hander and southpaw, respectively, failed to show until late in the season. Reynolds has been looking like a good pitcher lately and Cavet, the player says, has come into his own and will be a wonder next year. There is no reason why Covaleski shouldn't be as good as this season.

These three men, together with George Rause and Jean Dubuc, ought to form the nucleus of a good gang of pitchers. The Tigers have been weak for a long time on pitchers. A dependable staff of four men with two southpaws to choose them would be the fulfillment of many a fan's pipe dream here.

Marty Kavanaugh, the recruit second baseman, is showing a lot of improvement in his practice on ground balls, which have been his defensive weakness. He was early taken in hand by Manager Jennings when he displayed that weakness, but he didn't take the instruction of his boss seriously enough, apparently. Then Hugh showed him that he meant business by taking him off second base and giving him a rest on the bench. Marty has been making big strides since that time and threatens to hop onto that second sack again. Little Oscar Vitt, who has been playing second base, has been playing the kind of ball that would make Hukh think a long time before he shifted him out of the infield however if Vitt doesn't suffer some more of his usual bad luck, he is going to give somebody a battle in the infield.

Then there is Pep Young, the most highly recommended infielder ever purchased by the Tigers. Topung starts with a big handicap, this same boosting, but should he overcome it and come anywhere near up to his reputation he is going to be another formidable candidate for the infield. Young was secured from the Sacramento club.

Auburn Deserves Title Declares Coach Donahue

AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 26.—The refusal of Tennessee to play a post-season game is a big disappointment to the Auburn players. They are rather bitter against themselves for the wretched game they played against Georgia and are anxious to get the taste of it out of their mouths. Their glump, however, came at the logical time. After keying up against Vanderbilt and being accorded the championship by their friends, and then playing a team which had been defeated by three teams that Auburn had beaten, the result was a complete reversal of form in spite of everything that those could do who forgot saw the danger.

Auburn's yearly schedule, too, from an S. I. A. A. standpoint is the hardest of any. Every team is sure to slump some time during the season, but as Auburn only plays S. I. A. A. games, her slumps has to come in the contest that hurts her standing. Other teams can play very poor football in outside games, as Vanderbilt did against Virginia, and then not have their S. I. A. A. standing hurt at all.

Harvard made this a tie by Brown, and a 10 to 9 victory by Washington and Jefferson, yet she is held as the greatest team of all time. Auburn still thinks that she is the champion of the S. I. A. A., because she has not been defeated and because she holds the unique distinction of being the only team in the United States, under present-day football, not scored on.

A comparison of her scores with those of Tennessee, the only other claimant, undoubtedly gives Auburn the edge. Comparative scores are a poor way of determining a team's strength. But with Tennessee's refusal to play, that is all that is left, and unless there is positive evidence to the contrary, a champion is still a champion. Tennessee and Auburn played two teams in common, Clemson and Vanderbilt. Clemson game was won by Auburn by one more point than Tennessee's victory over Clemson. The Vanderbilt game is in Auburn's favor, with Vanderbilt admittedly playing the best game she has played during the season. Tennessee defeated a demoralized Alabama team 17-7, but Auburn defeated Mississippi A. & M., that was at least as strong as Alabama on that occasion, 19-0. Tennessee defeated Sewanee 14-7, but Auburn defeated Tech at the top of their game, 14-9. This, as has been said before, is only a poor method at best, but is the only one left, and from it there is nothing at all to indicate that Auburn is still not the best team in the S. I. A. A. Against their common opponents, Clemson and Vanderbilt, Auburn has the edge on Tennessee, and too, the Auburn schedule was much harder than Tennessee's which should be considered by all; and too, Auburn's goal line remaining uncrossed.

Play in the semi-final matches of the five flights in the president's cup tournament at the Capital City Country club has been finished, save for the Rivers-Neer match in the third flight.

In the first flight Lowry Arnold plays Dick Jemison for the trophy. In the semi-finals, Mr. Arnold defeated W. P. Hammond, 1 up. Mr. Jemison defeated C. P. Kelly, 5 up and 4 to play.

In the second flight R. T. Small meets C. W. Hanson for the trophy, Mr. Small defeating W. G. Humphreys in the semi-finals, 3 up and 2 to play, and Mr. Hanson defeating T. G. Woolford, 6 up and 4 to play.

In the third flight Evelyn Harris meets the winner of the Rivers-Neer match, Mr. Harris defeated V. R. Smith, 1 up.

In the fourth flight F. E. Mackie is winner, defeating John Hill in the finals, 4 up and 3 to play.

W. C. Hall vs. L. T. Quimby is the schedule for the finals in the fifth flight, Mr. Hall drawing a bye in the semi-finals and Mr. Quimby defeating W. E. Hawkins, 3 up and 1 to play.

Eleven Games For Series?

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—The 1915 world's series championship baseball games will number eleven instead of seven and prices will be lower, according to B. B. Johnson, president of the American league, when he made public last night a letter from August Herrmann, chairman of the national baseball commission.

The question of cutting prices for the world's series was considered at a recent meeting of the American league board and after a tentative agreement was reached, President Johnson submitted the proposal to National league club owners.

Herrmann's letter said the national owners had agreed to the change and that a plan would be adopted at the annual meeting in January. Some club owners, he said, had objected to cutting the prices, but it would increase the amount given the players. According to the proposed change, however, the players will receive the first five instead of four games, so their total will not be decreased.

Boys' High Is Winner, 3-0

Drop-Kick in Last Quarter Defeats Tech High School After One of the Toughest Battles Ever Waged by Preps

Battling against a much weightier team, Boys' High school defeated Tech High school Thursday morning at Grant field with a drop kick Scott booted from the 45-yard line in the last quarter.

The game has the most spectacular and hard-fought ever staged by a Georgia prep school eleven. The rival elevens scrapped all the way for every inch of territory. Boys' High was rushed time and again far into its own territory, but in the shadow of its very goal posts the Purple would hold and kick out of danger.

Had it not been for the neat boot of Scott the game would have ended in a bowkmot. As it was, 3 to 0 is as good as B. B. S. hoped for, as the dope was all against them ebfore the game started.

Tech High made a touchdown in the last minute of play, but was called back for being out of bounds.

The result of this game effectually tangles the prep championship dope fically. Tech High previously had won three games. Boys' High had won one and tied two. To all appearances Boys' High has as clear a claim to the title as any team in the elague.

Walter Locke Again Winner

For Second Time, Speedy Pacer Cops Atlanta Athletic Club Trophy for Three-Mile Road Race

Running against twenty-two other men, Walter Locke, winner last year of the Atlanta Athletic club road race trophy, again proved his superiority Thanksgiving morning when he copped first place in the third annual road race of the club.

Walter Newman came in second and W. A. Dodge, of Marist college, finished third. The course was about three miles, from the club house on Auburn avenue, to Piedmont avenue, to Ponce de Leon, to Peachtree, back along Peachtree to Auburn, and then to the club house.

The officials were Joe Bean, starter and clerk of the course; T. Forbes, Jim Harrison and Pie Weaver, judges.

Marsans Hops Back

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Armando Marsans, the Cuban outfielder, who jumped from the Cincinnati Nationals to the Federal league, has informed his friends in New York, according to reports published here today, that he intends to return to organized baseball, and would like a berth with the New York Nationals. Marsans is now playing ball just now in Havana, stationed at first base under an assumed name. It is not generally believed here that Manager McGraw, of the Giants, will undertake to have the Cuban's name stricken from organized baseball's blacklist.

Golf Tourney Is On Today

A flag tournament is on over the Druid Hills golf course today. Entry fee is 50 cents, flags are issued to every entry as he leaves the first tee either in the morning or the afternoon, prizes will be awarded to two winners. The match is a handicap event.

The golf committee of the club has announced that in each of the three flights in the invitation tourney for women now going on a prize will be awarded to the winner of the defeated eight.

Three Bouts at Columbia For Thursday Night

Three ten-round bouts have been announced for Thursday night by Mike Donahue, matchmaker for the Columbia theater. Terry Nelson will box Jack Sebtell, while Spider Britt will take on Kid York. Cyclone Thompson and Arthur Bridges, two negro pugs, will furnish the third mill. The boxers appear to be very evenly matched all round, and good exhibitions are expected.

Auto Race

CORONA, Cal., Nov. 26.—Twenty cars lined up for the start of the Corona automobile race, scheduled for today. They were to travel the two and two-fourths-mile circular track 109 times for $12,000 in purses.

Muddy Field

BEAUMONT, Tex., Nov. 26.—Forty-eight hours of almost continuous rain makes it certain the football game between Texas A. & M., and the University of Mississippi will be played on a muddy field here today.

Billiard Match

PITTSBURG, Kas., Nov. 26.—Walker Cochran defeated Harry Cline, 300 to 266 in a billiard players' league match here last night.

Entries Ready For Big Races

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Entry blanks for the 1915 Vanderbilt cup and International Grand Prix races were being mailed today to automobile clubs throughout the country. The Vanderbilt cup event for 400 miles will be run on Washington's birthday at the Panama-Pacific exposition in San Francisco. The international race will be held over the same course on February 27, for 600 miles. The circuit is only about four miles long and the racers must traverse it seventy-five times in the international events. Entries will close on February 10.

A clause in the Grand Prix blanks states that if the number of cars entered is too great, considering the length of the course, the contest committee of the Automobile Club of America may run an elimination contest.

Army vs. Navy

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 26.—The Army eleven had another strenuous workout Wednesday in preparation for the navy contest Saturday. A long forward pass rehearsal was not very encouraging, as neither of the ends seemed up to form. Coffin and Hodgson indulged in a punting duel. The former is kicking in fine form and his chances of starting against the Middies Saturday are considered good.

The men will get another drill tomorrow and will leave for Philadelphia Friday morning.

Jumps to Feds

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Rip Hagerman, a Cleveland American pitcher, today signed a three-year contract with the Chicago Federals, according to an announcement by Charles Weeghman, president of the club.

Jap Wins

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 26.—Koji Yamada defeated Ora Morningstar 300 to 215 in a billiard players' league match here last night.

BY GRANTLAND RICE

Before Percy Haughton came to Harvard's rescue Yale won twenty-two games from her Crimson rival and lost but five. Since Haughton arrived Yale has won one game and lost three. And when Haughton on Saturday entered a team good enough to beat Yale 36 to 0 more than one fervent Yale follower was about ready to concede that as long as Haughton held guard the Bull Dog's place was at the soup trough of defeat.

NOT HOPELESS.

But if Yale and Princeton follow Harvard's lead and keep one man in charge the situation isn't hopeless, even against such a master workman as Haughton is. His success came with experience and through fine perseverance, as well as through knowledge and skill. In the last three years against Yale Haughton's Harvard teams have run up 71 points against a margin that admits of no debate. He has had the one dreaded Bulldog eating out of his extended mitt.

BEFORE THIS.

But, after all, it must be remembered that Haughton, even Haughton, needed Old Dan Time to help him out. He took charge of Harvard's pallid fortunes back in 1908. Yale at that time was beginning to recede swiftly from her old days of power—and the guidance of Walter Camp.

Yet, at the end of four years, Harvard had scored but four points—one lead field goal—against the Blue. Haughton won, 4 to 0, in 1908; in 1909 he was beaten 8 to 0; in 1910, with a far better team, he was held 6-0; in 1911, with better material, the scoreless draw remained.

Four years, and Harvard had merely held Yale off—with no definite advance perceptible to the untrameled eye. The advance was there—due to the furtherance of Haughtan's system and all the helpful experience Haughton was gaining year by year. But it hadn't shown in results. Harvard might have got disgusted and tried a new leader. But Harvard stood pat, gave Haughton more time, and by 1912 he was at last under way. And by this time under way with such terrific force that his old rivals were beyond all human vision.

BACK IN 1911.

Take the 1911 Harvard team. This machine was better than either Yale or Princeton. Yet Yale tied it and Princeton won 8 to 6. Harvard was making mistakes in those days that gave great profit to the enemy. But Harvard has cut all that waste out. She makes few mistakes now, and when they come she covers them. She covered her fumble against Yale and converted it into a touchdown. And she also covered Yale's fumble and converted this into a touchdown. It was merely the development of a system of high efficiency. And such development doesn't come in one year.

TO MEET THIS.

Michigan and Chicago have had Yost and Stagg in much the same way but neither Yost nor Stagg is able to draw the same good prep material—so well developed before it reaches college. But these two have shown what a continuance of the same system means. Experience is one of the most vital parts of football success—both with the player and the coach.

Haughton had good experience coaching Cornell before he came to Harvard, and Haughton today is a far better coach than he was three years ago.

So, to meet Harvard now on anything like even terms, Yale and Princeton must put their football fortunes under the same order. Yale has already started with Hinkey, and if Hinkey can be retained for a period of years he will be able to do far better work in 1916 than he was able to show this season. Even as it is, he has shown resourcefulness and a decided talent in development. In originality he has been second to none in the game. He should have a fine future ahead of himself as master of Yale's football arms provided he is willing to go the route and travel along with the old Doc, i. e., Time.—

PRINCETON'S CAUSE.

While Harvard has Haughton and has Hinkey, Princeton is still without a leader, and without a system worth while. But Princton alone, to compete on even terms, must come to this method of play. Whether it be with Eddie Hart or some one else, the move should be made quickly in order that needed experience can be gained. It may be that Nassau has no one in sight she can be sure of, but the time has come when she must take a chance and get the best available for the job. Football, as now conducted, is a business; and no successful business is run on haphazard, year by year, lines.

When 70,000 people pay $140,000 to see one afternoon's play, the occasion takes on the semblance of an institution—and an institution of first order. A good football machine needs a coach who can give a big part of his time to the job—who can put in numberless hours formulating ways and methods of attack and defense,—and who can take over into one year what he has gathered up in the season behind him. Who can improve the good and eliminate the bad.

THEN AND NOW.

In the old days football players were as good as they were heavy; as good as they were thick around the chest and neck. But under this passing, catching, kicking game football players must be developed by several years' work. No one learns how to pass and catch a football in the right way in two months' time. In this game skill has supplanted brawn; and skill isn't manufactured in a week or a month.

Princeton Alumnus on Recent Game With Yale

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 26.—Sporting Editor Journal: So much has been said about Yale's defeats in 1913 and Princeton game that I desire to quote Heff Herring, athletic editor of the Princeton Alumni Weekly, on the point of Princeton's awakening in the final game with the Blue, while at the same time not attempting to detract from the glory of Yale's achievement winning by 19-14.

Mr. Herring is an authority and his version is not disputed:

"In less than twelve minutes Princeton swept down the field in two long marches for touchdowns. And while at the moment the rally started several Yale substitutes were in the line up, they were not suffered to bear the burden long. The regulars were promptly put back—Stillman, Brann and others—but they were powerless to check Princeton team that had suddenly waked up to the fact that it could play football. Many substitutes were also in the Princeton game in the first half. They were no respectors of persons. Captain Talbot, of Yale, was repeatedly thrust aside as easily as any of his men, while I saw Dickerman, of Princeton, carrying the ball, bump into and knock over two of the big Yale backs, though another had him by the legs at the time.

"The team had the power and the football knowledge to have won as honorably as they lost."

The Princeton clan is up in arms against the committee system of coaching tried this year and probably will insist on putting the responsibility on one man. The Princeton dissension is going the rounds and this will undoubtedly result in remedying the difficulty and giving Princeton the winning team that she usually has. Coleman F. Brown, '06, writing for the Alumni Weekly, declared her defeat must build up an offensive rather than a defensive against Yale and Harvard, which seems to be the crux of the situation.

Cheapest Gas in the World

(Popular Mechanics.)

The town of Widnes in England, which for years has been accredited with producing the cheapest artificial gas in the world, has announced a still further reduction in price.

Through the use of horizontal retorts which improved the carbonizing results, the cost of production has been lowered. A reduction of 1 penny per thousand cubic feet is recommended by the engineer and adopted by the council, bringing the price to consumers of less than 3,000,000 cubic feet a year to 24 cents for each 1,000 cubic feet.

NEW YORK COTTON REVISION

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The spot revision committee of the New York Cotton Exchange today announced the following differentials on grades above middling by from 3 to 24 points. Grades and middling were left unchanged. Full grades, fair; strict middling fair, good ordinary, 50 points; strict middling, 100 points. The effect is to strengthen the local contract.

Let Stocks Alone, but Buy Good Bonds Now.

BY JOHN M. OBRISON.

On the day this is written it seemed probable that the London market for stocks would soon be reopened—under these conditions:

Banks which had loaned on the security of stock collateral would not press for repayment of the loans for one year; the British government would arrange with the Bank of England to advance to S.ock Exchange members 60 per cent of the value of stocks as shown by the prices of July 29 last, at a rate 1 per cent higher than the current bank rate, and when prices again reached that July 29 level lenders will have the right to call their loans.

Probably the New York exchange would not remain closed long after the London market opened; it, too, would have to be hedged round by conditions that would protect the calling of loans and the demoralization of prices.

But for a long time the average investor will do well to confine his study to the real market price of stocks.

For even the best stocks quotations will be artificially and they can be bought only in disregard of price fluctuations and after a close study of their intrinsic value.

But the case of good bonds is different. Already, in this country, trading in them has been resumed and carried on in a way that gives market values have been fairly established.

Of course, the problem of settling bond prices is easier of solution than that of establishing stock values. What is borrowed money worth? is the question the bond buyer asks himself, and, satisfied, while the stock buyer must face the problem of estimating the future business prosperity of the country as it will affect the securities of the industries whose stock he is considering.

Now is a time when the average investor would do well to fix in his mind that if he buys bonds he becomes a creditor with enforceable claims against the corporation issuing the bonds, while as a buyer of stock he can claim only a general partner's share in the profits; if there are no profits he gets nothing.

We have ceased to fear that the war will hit us so hard that we shall have to repudiate our debts; the exceptions among the weak organizations are not numerous. The course of bond prices in recent days has been upward, but they are still cheap. Good bonds are an attractive investment.

Business losses caused by an imperfect accounting system

Such losses cost many businesses each year far more than would the services of a qualified Certified Public Accountant.

As evidence of this statement, few, if any, of those firms who have employed this service ever go back to previous systems.

They employ the service, year after year because it continues to be profitable.

BLOOD TRAIL LEADS TO CAPTURE OF BAD NEGRO

Black Wounded in Duel With Police Caught 14 Hours Later

Following a trail of blood for more than a mile, Police Officers Hamby and Vickery Thursday about noon captured Thomas Heard, a negro, who more than twelve hours before tried to assassinate Patrolmen Greer and Eberhardt, when they interrupted him in the act of robbing Cornelius Reed's store at 29 Leonard street.

A wound inflicted in the ankle of the negro by a bullet from one of the officers' revolvers during the course of a desperate duel about 10:30 o'clock Wednesday night, enabled the officers to trail the negro for a distance of about a mile, when they were informed by an excited negro, who found them on their beat on Peters street, that two negroes were attempting to break into a store.

As they approached they heard the crash of the glass door of the store, and ran from the alley in front of the building at the door, while another was leaning against a nearby telegraph pole. The negro at the door quickly coated his right hand on his left arm and fired five times at Patrolman Eberhardt. "Fortunately his aim was poor, and the coated blue coat was not injured. The negro, who was evidently using an automatic revolver, then turned his weapon and fired a couple of shots at Greer, both of which missed.

The officer returned his fire. The negro then ran opposite direction. The officers firing at the negro, who had used the gun, saw him fall, heard him scream wildly, and then saw him rise and continue running.

They chased him under a church on Leonard street, where he eluded them, to be captured fourteen hours later. The negro on his capture admitted, while his wound was being dressed at the Grady hospital, that he had fired on the officer. He was later transferred to police headquarters and charged with an attempted burglary.

SIDELIGHTS ON METHODIST CONFERENCE AT DAWSON

BY REV. LOY WARWICK.

DAWSON, Ga., Nov. 26.—The first day of conference was very busy one and full of interesting features.

Bishop Candler made two interesting addresses, one at the opening of the conference and the other when the report on the new Methodist university was before the conference. He was very eloquent in both speeches. At the close of his opening remarks there were not many dry eyes in the congregation.

His remarks on the new university were enthusiastically received by the conference. The purpose of the church is to establish, and to build up in the south a truly great university owned and controlled by the church.

He did not expect to live to see it finished, but one day the Methodist church will have an educational institution that will be a great power for good.

Dr. T. N. Ivey, of Nashville, Tenn., made an address on Christian journalism and religious literature.

Dr. Ivey is editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, one of the strongest weekly papers in the connexional. He is a fine journalist and one of the leading preachers in his conference. He oelongs to the Western North Carolina conference.

Dr. W. C. Lovett presented the report of the Centenary Episcopal Residence which was referred to the committee on books and periodicals. Rev. P. W. Ellis is chairman of this committee. Rev. Ellis is pastor of the Trinity Methodist Monumental church in Savannah, where he has done a fine year's work.

The general board of education was represented by its agent, Rev. G. W. Bates. He told of the splendid work being done by this great organization in educating the Word of God throughout the world.

Rev. R. P. Wilson, D. D., of Nashville, Tenn., made an appeal for the work of the Methodist Publishing house, located in that city. The publishing house is the property of the annual conferences of Southern Methodism. The main offices and supply house are in Nashville, with branch houses in Dallas and Richmond. It does a large book supply business and prints several periodicals.

The largest item in the publishing house is the printing of the Sunday school literature. Dr. S. B. Chappell is editor of the Sunday school publications. Dr. Goss Alexander edits the Methodist Review and is also the book editor. All of these have their residence and offices in Nashville.

TWO REMARKABLE BROTHERS.

One of the most interesting events in the conference is Rev. J. B. McGehee. D. D. Dr. McGehee has just finished his sixty-first year in the ministry. He is now preparing for his sixty-second appointment as a Methodist itinerant. He has served the church at Buena Vista this year, but will not return to it. It is his desire his return for another year. More than three-score years of active service in the ministry is a record that few if any if this can be duplicated in the whole Methodist church or any other church. Thirty-five years of Dr. McGehee's conference life has been spent in the presiding eldership.

He has served in a number of general conferences, for he is always took an active part in debates and has had much to do with shaping the legislation of the church. He is universally loved and has had more influence for good than Dr. McGehee. In his church work he magnifies the office of the young people. He reads new books and the current periodicals, thus keeping abreast of the times. Mentally he is still alert and in debate is a formidable antagonist. Before going to his present charge Dr. McGehee spent four years as pastor of the Oglethorpe church.

Rev. E. H. McGehee is a brother to Dr. J. B. McGehee. He has served for fifty-five years continuously and is here to receive his fifty-sixth appointment at the hands of Bishop Candler. Rev. E. H. McGehee is the pastor of the church at Vidalia. One hundred and six years of active service is the record of these two brothers. What conference or what church in America can surpass or parallel this record for long, unbroken service?

If Dr. McGehee could take time from his busy pastoral life to write a book about his work for the past sixty years it would make interesting reading. A great many changes have come in the church and in the world since he began his life as a circuit rider. Dr. McGehee is a conference optimist and believes that the church has been growing in grace and power during all these years.

CHURCH EXTENSION.

The church extension board held its first meeting Wednesday afternoon. Many applications for assistance in church building have come in. A number of charges report new church buildings, or improvements in existing buildings. The work of the church extension society is to aid weak and struggling congregations in their efforts to properly house themselves.

The officers of the church extension board are: Dr. J. F. Harris, president; Rev. J. W. Heidt, secretary; Rev. B. R. Sentell, treasurer. The other members are T. B. Stanford, Loy Warwick, B. E. Washington, Wm. Wright, W. L. Wright, T. Pafford, C. R. Jenkins, S. M. Moore, W. A. Jones, J. B. Parker, W. C. Wright, G. W. Walters, J. D. Shingler, W. C. Troutman, C. U. Wooten, A. S. Camp, I. P. Tison. The headquarters of the general board are in Nashville, Tenn. The general secretary, Rev. W. B. McMurray, D. D., is one of the big, brainy men of southern Methodism. He will be a visitor to the South Georgia conference and a speaker at the anniversary of the board.

CABINET MEETS.

The bishop and his cabinet began their work Wednesday afternoon. They will hold a meeting each day during the conference. Their work is an arduous and important one.

In this conference there are ten presiding elders' districts, 239 pastoral charges and 100,000 members. To make the appointments in accordance with the best interest of all the people and to think some council members, like Alderman Owens, who receive only $25 per month for their services to the city, should really be relieved of some burdensome committee duties."

The mayor cites a section of the city charter which provides that he at the first meeting of council shall "announce the standing committee."

If this is correct to the council, from taking into its own hands the naming of a committee, it is said by councilmen that Councilman W. M. Outler, of the Thomasville district: Rev. J. P. McFerrin, of the Macon, and Rev. L. A. Hill, of the McRae, have served for four years and have also served on the conference board of finance and will get new appointments.

The feature of the Wednesday evening session was an address by Rev. H. M. DuBose, D.D., of Atlanta, First Methodist church, which was the anniversary of the Epworth League. Dr. DuBose made the principal address, which was heard by a large congregation. Dr. DuBose, for many years general secretary of the Epworth League and editor of the Epworth Era, is a forceful and able speaker.

FOURTEEN MINISTERS ADMITTED ON TRIAL

South Georgia Conference Gives Young Preachers Chance to "Make Good"

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DAWSON, Ga., Nov. 26.—Fourteen young ministers were today admitted on trial into the South Georgia conference. The character of the first and second year were called, their characters passed and they were advanced to the next class. Bishop Candler presided over the class, the prominent laymen attending the conference.

The report of Wesleyan college was made today by President C. R. Jenkins. Dr. Jenkins told the conference the college now derives an income from $100,000, which includes a portion of the senior gift. These, he said, were a great blessing to the college, but that an increase in the future can hope to maintain its position as a grade "A" institution without a larger income from endowment. The religious atmosphere of the college is fine.

FIVE FLORIDA LAND AGENTS FOUND GUILTY

Sentence Deferred on Head of Company and Four of His Assistants

(By Associated Press.)

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 26.— E. C. Chambers, of Kansas City, president of the Chambers Land company, and four of his agents were found guilty here today of misusing the mails in connection with the sale of everglades land in Florida. Sentence was deferred.

In addition to Chambers, the defendants were the Rev. A. E. Gammage, of Kansas City, Mo.; Fred Bryan, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; E. L. Russell, Miami, Fla., and Charles H. Hubbard, Pittsburg, Kas.

The jury had been out since 5 o'clock last night and early today it was reported that a disagreement was imminent.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE HELD IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Members of the cabinet, the diplomatic corps, the supreme court and other prominent figures in official life, gathered today at St. Patrick's church for the annual Pan American mass of thanksgiving.

President Wilson was in Williamstown, Mass., spending the day with his daughter, Mrs. F. B. Sayre, and it was the first time since the Pan-American celebration was organized several years ago that the president of the United States has not attended.

The diplomatic representatives, in brilliant uniforms, assembled with other dignitaries and marched into the church in a solemn but colorful procession where mass was said in celebration of peace and thanksgiving among the americas.

SILENT GUN IS LATEST WEAPON OF THE KAISER

New Gun Makes No Report When It Throws Deadly Shell at Enemy

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Nov. 26.—A silent gun is the latest weapon to be brought forward by the German army in France, according to a narrative by Colonel E. D. Swinton, British eyewitness at the front. The narrative dated November 23 was given out here today by the official press bureau. It says:

"In our center the enemy employed a silent gun which may be pneumatic or worked by some mechanical contrivance. There is no report of the discharge, the projectile travels through the air without any of the warning made by an ordinary shell, and the first notice of its arrival is the detonation. So far the weapon has done no damage."

The account says the trenches of the opponents are at some points nearly overlooked by some masterful
